Death Toll of Mine Explosion Believed Seven

BIG BARRIER LIES IN WAY OF RESCUERS

Little Hope Exists Any of Seven Men Trapped By Blast in Coal Pit at Stellarton, N.S., Will Be Found Alive

Others, Totaling 189, Emerged Safely

Canadian Press

Stellarton, N.S., April 16.—Seven coal miners were feared to have been killed to-day in a terrific explosion that sent hundreds of tons of rock and coal crashing down on their working place in the Allan shaft, where eighty-eight men perished in an explosion in 1918.

Late this afternoon, rescue workers coming to the surface reported they were still 600 to 800 feet away from the spot where the trapped seven had been working. They were making slow progress through the imprisoning barrier.

BOLD LITTLE HOPE

A mass of coal and stone blocked the way. Rescue workers expressed belief all seven must have been buried alive when the explosion roared through the workings.

OTHER WORKERS SAFE

All others of the 196 men who entered the pit this morning were accounted for, according to Superintendent D. H. McLean of the Acadia Coal Company, and Dominic Nearing, sub-district board member for the United Mine Workers. They were all on the surface except for rescue crews and about fifteen officials who had stayed below to supervise the work of digging for the trapped colliers.

Cause of the explosion was a mystery. The nearest workers, 1,500 feet away from the spot where the seven were working, said they heard only a dull, muffled thud, followed by a whistling blast of air that swept one man off his feet and hurled him several yards.

NAMES OF VICTIMS

That it may have originated in a "shot" of explosive to loosen coal was one theory that was apparently strengthened by the presence of a shot-firer among the missing seven. Ron Flemming was the shot-firer, and the others with him in the 1,500-foot southeast level were:

Dick Clark, fifty, married, Stellarton.

Sandy Beaton, fifty-five, married, Lourdes, N.S.

Abe Hennessey, forty-five, married, Stellarton.

WORKS SCHEME URGED BY B.C.

Small Allotment in Federal Programme Is Disappointment to Province

British Columbia's allotment of only a few hundred thousand dollars out of the federal government's $18,000,000 public works programme came as a severe disappointment to the provincial government.

A strong advocate of works to relieve unemployment, the province had anticipated a much larger share. Advices from Ottawa indicate, however, that the only work to be done in B.C. will be on the east end of the Big Bend highway.

"We will continue to press for a large expenditure on public works," said Premier Pattullo when asked for his comment. "Circumstances will force this issue."

At the same time Hon. John Hart, Minister of Finance, was preparing to leave this week-end for Ottawa where he will ask federal aid in financing the $3,000,000 road programme planned by the provincial government.

The road loan, plus accommodation to cover the provincial share of unemployment relief costs, will make a total of between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000 which B.C. will ask by way of loans from Ottawa this year.

Thunderbird Bowl To Be Displayed At Spencers'

Owing to the great interest in the Thunderbird bowl which will be presented by the British Columbia Government to the King on the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of his accession to the Throne, arrangements have been made to display the silverware in the show window of David Spencer Limited, to-morrow. The beautiful gift will be placed in the corner window at Douglas and View Sts. To-morrow will be the last day on which Victorians will have an opportunity of viewing it. It has been on display in the Parliament Buildings and at Maurice Carmichael, silversmith, Fort Street, for two days. Many Victorians were unable to view it in either of these places and were hopeful that it would be on display in a more central location. Thousands of Victorians will be able to view it to-morrow in Spencers'.

Powers At League Session Score Germany's Course

Britain, France and Italy Unite in Condemning Treaty Repudiation and Asking Measures to Prevent Similar Breaches

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Geneva, April 16.—Great Britain, France and Italy to-day united before the Council of the League of Nations in condemnation of Germany's unilateral repudiation of treaty obligations, and in seeking measures to prevent similar actions in the future.

The Council was asked to declare, in the resolution submitted by French Foreign Minister Pierre Laval, on behalf of the three governments, "that Germany has failed in the duty which lies upon all members of the international community to respect undertakings which they have contracted, and condemns any unilateral repudiation of international obligations."

Great Britain and Italy warmly supported the resolution after it had been backed up by M. Laval with a strong French memorandum on German rearmament. Poland raised objections, Spain's delegate hinted he might have amendments. The Danish representative asked time to consult his government. After an hour and a half of debate in a room packed to suffocation, the Council adjourned till to-morrow.

WOULD PERMIT SCRIP MONEY

G. G. Coote Gives Notice in Commons of Bill to Delete Section of Bank Act

Canadian Press

Ottawa, April 16.—Hoping to remove the statutory obstacle standing in the way of use by provinces or municipalities of scrip money to deal with internal economic difficulties, G. G. Coote, U.F.A., Macleod, to-day gave notice in the Commons of a bill to strike out section 178 of the act respecting banks and banking.

Section 136 provides a fine of $400 as penalty for any person or body issuing and circulating a substitute for money.

Mr. Coote's idea is the use of a stamp scrip similar to that initiated a few years ago in the town of Woergl in Austria. There it proved a great success until it was prohibited because of its conflict with the money issuing powers of the Austrian National Bank.

The scrip suggested would be kept within the boundaries of the municipality or province issuing it, and would be good for one year providing a stamp was fixed on the first day of each month by the person then holding the note. The necessity of fixing stamps on the first of each month would provide the spending impetus to keep the scrip in circulation. It would be exchanged each year for a new note.

Protests C.P.R. Chief's Talks

F. G. Sanderson, Ontario M.P., Asks Beatty's Attacks on C.N.R. Be Ended

Canadian Press

Ottawa, April 16.—E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, was described in the House of Commons yesterday as Canada's public enemy number one for his attacks on the Canadian National system. F. G. Sanderson, Liberal, South Perth, Ont., applied the expression, calling on the government to stop the propaganda or combat it.

The western Ontario Liberal claimed Mr. Beatty was attempting to poison the minds of the people against their own railway and to depreciate it so that his company eventually could gobble it up and operate the two systems in Canada.

Mr. Beatty was conducting a systematic campaign, Mr. Sanderson claimed, to attack the credit of the C.N.R. He believed the government should stop him because he, the head of the C.N.R.'s chief competitor, should be the last man to attack it.

RETURN OF BETTER TIMES

The return of normal conditions in Canada would solve problems of the C.N.R. and C.P.R., Mr. Sanderson predicted. In the meantime, no insidious efforts to undermine the C.N.R. should be allowed to gain that objective.

MINISTER SPEAKS

Minister of Railways R. J. Manion said he could not instruct Hon. C. P. Fullerton, chairman of the C.N.R.

Gulls Give Crows Swimming Lessons

Interesting Demonstrations On Dallas Road; One annoyed Bird Turns On Instructor When Bad Dive Results In Ducking.

Another of the natural history stories that spring prompts is being told to-day about a number of crows and seagulls seen on a log off the Dallas Road waterfront.

The nature lover who tells the story, prefaces it by claiming the gulls frequently act as teachers to the crows. They first taught the crows, he says, how to fly with clams to a height so they would break when dropped on the rocks. This, however, was not a great success because the crafty crows also learned how to wait on the rocks while the gulls flew in the air to drop the clams.

Yesterday this nature lover saw a number of gulls teaching some crows how to swim. The gulls would spring from the log into the water and back on to the log. Some of the crows after carrying on a raucous conversation among themselves, tried it. They managed to sail on the water for a while, but with very little grace. They tried it repeatedly.

One crow hesitated. The ribbing from the rest of the birds was almost human. Eventually the crow was goaded into trying. It made an unlainly jump, but toppled head first and went under the water. The crow's consternation was registered in its harsh cries as soon as it came up to the surface. It made a straight line for the gull it held to blame and started an bitter battle.

Dry Spring Holds Back Saanich Crops

Drought Has Dried Up Land; Farmers Express Views on Irrigation; Gordon Head Seems Unaffected

The spring drought which South Vancouver Island has been experiencing has dried up the fields and held crops back in Saanich but does not seem to have had much effect in the Gordon Head district, according to a survey of farms made by The Times this morning.

Captain E. Livesey, manager of the Saanich Fruitgrowers' Association and farmer in Sidney, declared that this was the worst spring drought he had ever experienced. This last heavy rain had packed the soil, and the dry weather since had baked it so that it was becoming increasingly difficult to cultivate.

The cold weather at the beginning of the year, coupled with the present drought had made this one of the latest springs. However, if there were rain and warmth inside of a week Captain Livesey believed conditions would return to normal.

On being questioned whether irrigation would benefit island farmers Captain Livesey replied:

"Irrigation down a pipe is not practical for the farmers. First of all it is too costly, and secondly, the water should be warm before it flows on the land. If you have pipe instead of ditch irrigation, it means the farmer must employ overhead watering, which is quite out of the question."

Federal Ottawa District Suggested

Commons Committee Hears Plan For Creation Of Dominion Administered Area.

Canadian Press

Ottawa, April 16.—Establishment of a federal district embracing twenty-five square miles on each side of the Ottawa River was recommended to-day to the parliamentary committee on the British North America Act by Dr. Arthur Beauchesne, clerk of the House of Commons. Within this section the Dominion would have complete jurisdiction.

In matters of education, said Dr. Beauchesne, the Dominion could establish a national university, with scholarships furnished by the Dominion and other technical institutions which at present the B.N.A. Act prevented it from doing.

He advocated a national park be established, containing 70,000 acres north of the city.

Dr. Beauchesne was not in favor of disfranchising those who lived within the federal district.

Cheque Testimony Also At To-day's Hearing of Widow and Auto Driver

Grandmother of G. P. Stoner, Called at Preliminary Hearing on Death of F. M. Rattenbury, Tells Bournemouth, Eng., Magistrate Chauffeur Borrowed Mallet From Her; Purchase of Ring and Clothing Described

MRS. RATTENBURY APPEARS NEAR FAINTING

Canadian Press

Bournemouth, Eng., April 16.—Preliminary hearing of charges of murder against forty-one-year-old Mrs. Alma Rattenbury and her nineteen-year-old chauffeur, George Percy Stoner, was again adjourned to-day, until April 24, without a decision.

Much detailed testimony was added to the record of the now famous "seaside triangle case" concerning the relations between the two, accused of slaying Mrs. Rattenbury's sixty-seven-year-old husband, Francis M. Rattenbury, architect who spent many years on Canada's Pacific Coast, where he designed the British Columbia Legislative Buildings at Victoria, as well as a number of leading Canadian hotels.

Various witnesses told of payments of money by the young woman to Stoner and also of the latter's purchase of a ring with bills cashed on a cheque received from Mrs. Rattenbury.

CONSTABLE TESTIFIES

Constable Batwell, on the stand late in the day, said that when he reached the Rattenbury villa on the night of the wounding Mrs. Rattenbury was apparently under the influence of drink. She was cautioned after which she had told him, the witness said: "I'll give you ten pounds; no, I won't bribe you."

Rattenbury on that evening was suffering severe head wounds, which caused his death four days afterwards.

CLOTHING FOUND

The constable said he found a man's jacket and waistcoat, which appeared to have just been washed, in the bathroom, and a man's blood-stained collar in the garbage pail. The mallet with which police say the crime was committed was concealed behind the front door.

The courtroom was again crowded at the afternoon session.

SURGEON HEARD

Alfred Brooke, surgeon, described the head wounds which caused Rattenbury's death. He said the injuries were caused by three straight blows from behind with some blunt instrument such as the mallet produced by police. This had hairs and skin adhering to it.

When he arrived at the house on the night of the wounding, said the doctor, Mrs. Rattenbury was endeavoring to remove her husband's shirt and was calling for scissors with which to cut it clear. The witness said he could not persuade her to keep away from the bed on which he was treating her husband, and she continued to make what he considered to be incoherent remarks.

He decided, owing to the disturbance in the house, that the only thing to do was to remove Rattenbury to a nursing home as quickly as possible. Rattenbury died four days later from oedema of the brain.

CONFESSION REPUDIATED

To-day's session of the preliminary hearing was the second, the opening one having been held last week. Stoner was said by police to have admitted attacking the architect in his home here with a heavy wooden mallet, causing injuries which led to his death four days later. The police also had introduced an alleged confession by the pretty widow, later, according to police witnesses, repudiated.

SLIGHTLY UPSET

Mrs. Rattenbury appeared slightly flushed as she was escorted to the dock this forenoon by a wardress. Slightly flurried, she gazed around the crowded court-room. She wore a beige felt hat and a fur coat with a large pink carnation.

For a fleeting second, her eyes met those of the youthful chauffeur, but there was no sign of recognition between the two.

MALLET BORROWED

Mrs. Elizabeth Stevens, grandmother of the accused chauffeur, was to-day's first witness. She said Stoner borrowed the mallet with the remark he was going to put up a tent.

MORE AUTOS ON B.C. ROADS

Six Per Cent More Cars Up to End of March; New Machines Increase

An increase of 6 per cent in the number of cars on British Columbia roads to the end of March this year, compared with 1934, was reported in a statement released to-day by the motor board office.

The report indicated there were 2,409 more cars on the road now than at this time last year, an increase which corresponds with that of last year.

Increases were shown in both the number of passenger vehicles on the road and commercial cars. There were 1,154 new registrations for passenger machines, compared with 799 last year. Renewals totaled 49,643 for this year and 47,448 for 1934, making totals of 50,797 renewals and new registrations of passenger machines for 1935, and 48,236 for 1934.

New registrations of commercial vehicles totaled 364, compared with 196 last year. There were 12,234 renewals and 11,854 last year. These totals are 12,598 for this year and 11,750 for 1934.

The total of new registrations and renewals for both passenger and commercial machines this year is 63,395 and for last year was 59,986.

NEW CITY HALL

Vancouver, April 16.—The city council yesterday approved orders to its budget committee to make preparations to float a $1,500,000 baby bond issue for construction of a city hall and other public works.

A three-man commission composed of Chief Justice Aulay Morrison, Dr. L. S. Klinck, president of the University of British Columbia, and G. L. Thornton Sharp, chairman of the Vancouver town planning commission, was asked to make an independent survey and advise the council on a city hall site.

Two Injured By Robbers

Canadian Press

Vancouver, April 16.—J. A. Salter received injuries on the face when struck with a gun by one of three men who attempted to hold him up yesterday evening. One of the men struck Salter when he reached toward his hip as if for a gun. The men then ran without stopping to search him.

Miss Dorothy Edwards was attacked by a lone footpad at Fifteenth Avenue and Granville Street while she was returning home from work early this morning.

When she refused to give the man her money he struck her in the face, breaking her eyeglasses and knocking her to the ground. She screamed for help and the man ran without any loot.

CHALLENGE AT INQUIRY

Witness at B.C. Relief Investigation Asks If C. T. McHattie Should Sit As Member of Federal Commission

Canadian Press

Vancouver, April 16.—Challenge of the right of one member of the royal commission to sit on a body charged with investigation of relief camps in British Columbia rang cries of derision from a number of men who ostentatiously left the court room, marked today's session of the camp inquiry here.

Holding in his hand a pair of "camp" trousers which he asserted were supplied to the government by Gault Bros. Ltd., Arthur H. Evans, representing the Workers' Unity League, challenged the propriety of C. T. McHattie sitting as a member of the commission. Mr. McHattie, he said, is general manager of Gault's.

Evans began his evidence with a protest against wages paid skilled workmen in camps and asserted these wages affected the province's whole wage scale. He suddenly switched to an attack on the commission's personnel and was warned by Hon. W. A. Macdonald, chairman, to confine himself to specific complaints. He continued, however, long enough to lodge his protest against Mr. McHattie.

"The sole purpose of appointing this commission was to stop the walkout," Evans declared.

"We want specific evidence," said Mr. Macdonald, "and unless you stop that line I shall have to have you expelled."

"Your report won't be in favor of the camp workers, whatever evidence is presented," Evans replied as he stepped from the witness box and marched out.

Commons Asked To Speed Work

Government Tries to Get Works-railway Repair Bill and Farm Loan Bill on Books Before Easter Adjournment To-morrow

Canadian Press

Ottawa, April 16.—Working against time, the government is seeking to get two measures through the House of Commons to-day in order to have them operating during the parliamentary adjournment, which will start to-morrow. One is the new public works bill; the other amends the Farm Loan Act. The Easter recess will continue till May 20.

A deadlock with the Senate on amendments to the Farm Loan Act developed when the Upper House made a long list of changes. Opposition members protested against the Senate amendments, and pressed for extended consideration.

BIG WORKS BILL

The public works bill is designed to put some $65,000,000 in circulation through wages and purchase of materials. This is in addition to the $40,000,000 voted last year, of which nearly $30,000,000 remains to be expended, although nearly all of it has been earmarked under contracts.

Railways affairs came to the front in the Commons yesterday on two occasions, the first when the government was empowered to advance money to the C.N.R. this year, and the second on the new public works programme. Included in the latter's $65,000,000 is provision for advancing $15,000,000 to the two railways to be spent on new equipment and repairs, the C.N.R. to receive $8,000,000 and the C.P.R. $7,000,000.

New Constitution For Canada Urged

Dr. A. Beauchesne, Clerk of Commons, Tells Committee Best Way Is to Write Clauses and Repeal Old B.N.A. Act

Canadian Press

Ottawa, April 16.—Amendment of the British North America Act should take the form of an entirely new constitution for Canada, and it should be drafted by a constituent assembly representative of the whole people, Dr. Arthur Beauchesne, clerk of the House of Commons, to-day told the parliamentary committee studying the proposals to amend the B.N.A. Act here. The British Parliament should, after Canada's new constitution was written, be requested to repeal the act.

REPRESENTATIVE BODY

Enlarging on the suggestion, Dr. Beauchesne declared the personnel of this constituent assembly should be representative of the Senate, the House of Commons and the provincial legislatures and should be one-fourth of the present number of each.

That was to say, the Senate, with ninety-six members normally, would have twenty-four representatives in the constituent assembly. The House of Commons would, with its 245 members, have sixty-one. The provinces would be proportionately represented as follows:

Alberta, sixteen; British Columbia, twelve; Manitoba, fourteen; New Brunswick, twelve; Nova Scotia, eight; Ontario, twenty-three; Prince Edward Island, eight; Quebec, twenty-three, and Saskatchewan, sixteen. The total representation would be 220.

This constituent assembly would meet at Winnipeg, summoned by proclamation issued by all the legislative bodies involved. It would be clearly set forth that "minority rights," preserved under the present British North America Act, would not be discussed. The representation would be drawn from all classes.

NO GOVERNMENT SIDE

"There ought to be no government side for any official opposition in such a body," said Dr. Beauchesne. The assembly would work on the lines of coalition. A committee of premiers and leaders of the opposition in the House of Commons and legislatures should have charge of the agenda and daily order of business.

At the first meeting each province would present its case, and committees would deal with every chapter of the British North America Act. Such matters as reducing membership in the House of Commons, election of senators, fisheries, companies act, insurance laws, radio and other questions would be thoroughly threshed out.

TO DECIDE TITLE

One item to be decided would be whether Canada would alter its name from "Dominion" to "Kingdom."

Once a constitution had been adopted by the Assembly, Dr. Beauchesne continued, it should be approved by each province and by the Dominion, then it should receive the assent of the King. Such a procedure would apply to subsequent amendments, which would require a majority of two-thirds of the respective legislatures.

OPPOSES SUBSIDIES

Dr. Beauchesne was opposed to continuing provincial subsidies. There should be a readjustment of taxation and expensive services should be transferred to the Dominion, he said. Each province should pay the salary of its own Lieutenant-Governor, who would, however, continue to be appointed by the Dominion. Similarly the provinces would be required to pay the judges of their own Superior Courts.

Dr. Beauchesne urged establishment of a Canadian judicial committee of the Privy Council.

PROVINCES' VIEWS

Telegrams from various provincial attorney-generals regarding amendments to the act were read to the committee.

The provincial administrators believed the Dominion should formulate its plan first and then submit it to the provincial authorities, after which a conference would ensue.

J. H. McQuarrie, attorney-general of Nova Scotia; Premier L. A. Taschereau of Quebec, and Hon. H. F. McPhee, Attorney-General of Prince Edward Island, favored conference between representatives of the Dominion and provinces.

"The question of what, if any, provision is to be made for amendment of the Canadian constitution from time to time," said Hon. T. C. Davis, Attorney-general of Saskatchewan, "is one which ultimately must be decided by conferences between the governments of the provinces and the government of Canada, with the possibility of a previous preliminary inter-provincial conference. In view of this fact it would appear to be unwise for the provinces to be giving their views before a committee of the House of Commons."

Mr. Davis suggests the committee make its report to the House, and that this report be made available to the provinces.

FROM MANITOBA

Hon. W. J. Major, for Manitoba, declared he would submit recommendations after prorogation of the provincial legislature.

New Brunswick declared a brief would be submitted to the committee after adjournment.

The province of Ontario had not yet replied to the committee's request for provincial views, said Chairman P. W. Turnbull.

Alberta has also failed to reply so far.

British Columbia replied some time ago, declining to submit a brief and suggesting negotiations between the provinces and Dominion.

REFUSE TO BAN B.C. PUBLICITY

Seattle City Council Votes Down Measure to Bar Waterfront Advertising

Associated Press

Seattle, April 16.—Efforts of some sightseeing tour companies and hotel operators to restore the ban against waterfront distribution of advertising material for British Columbia tourist attractions and hotels failed late yesterday when the city council refused, five to three, to repeal an ordinance passed last year permitting the advertising.

Such repeal would have put back in effect an ordinance which prohibited distribution of handbills within 500 feet of the docks. Petitioners for the repeal said removal of this ban has caused annoyance to tourists and littering of the waterfront area with advertising material. A majority of the council held the old restrictions had served to give a monopoly to one concern which had an exclusive privilege of advertising British Columbia tours within private steamship dock areas, not controlled by the ordinance.

Baptist Leader Called By Death

FLIGHT ATTEMPT ACROSS THE U.S.

Associated Press

Albuquerque, N.M., April 16. — A monoplane, believed to be that of Laura Ingalls, trying for a west-east trans-United States speed record, was sighted over this city at 9.50 a.m. M.S.T. (8.50 a.m., Pacific time), today.

Los Angeles, April 16.—Laura Ingalls roared away from the Union Air Terminal here early to-day in her black "mystery" plane in an attempt to shatter Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putman's trans-United States speed record.

Hoping to span the continent in fifteen hours or less, the 120-pound aviatrix "gave the gun" to her new $40,000 low wing monoplane as it began its 2,447-mile non-stop dash to Floyd Bennett field at New York.

The time of her take-off was 5.10 a.m.

Stevens Motion Before Commons

Canadian Press

Ottawa, April 16.—Notice of Hon. H. H. Stevens that he would move the House of Commons adopt the report of the Royal Commission on price spreads and mass buying will appear on the House order paper after all. Arthur Beauchesne, clerk of the Commons, said to-day.

Mr. Stevens, former Minister of Trade and Commerce and former chairman of the commission, gave his notice last Friday after the report had been tabled in the House, but there was some question over its admissability, largely because the report had been made to the government and not to the House.

Mr. Beauchesne said it had been decided to place the notice on the order paper, however, after consultation between Mr. Stevens, Speaker James L. Bowman and himself.

Jury Declares For Leniency

To Seek More Defence Funds

Britain, Discussing Budget, May Add to Appropriations Later in Year

Associated Press

London, April 16.—The government was charged by opposition leaders to-day with balancing its budget through failure to pay the United States war debt.

At the same time the comparatively modest concession accorded taxpayers was being widely interpreted as paving the way for further increases in British armaments.

Both pro-government and opposition quarters agreed Rt. Hon. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, was ultra-conservative in estimating his revenue for the ensuing year, because of the possibility the government may be looking for additional funds before the year is out to strengthen national defences.

Mr. Chamberlain himself encouraged this view in an address yesterday evening, in which he declared "Our continued progress must to some extent depend on events outside our own boundaries."

LANSBURY SPEAKS

Rt. Hon. George Lansbury, Labor leader, said:

"The Chancellor was able to balance his accounts only by refusing to pay Britain's debt to the United States. Had the Labor Government defaulted in the same way, we should have been told it was the end of all things."

Remarking on the possible need for additional sinews of war, The Financial Times said editorially to-day:

"Mr. Chamberlain had to be prudent, because defence services will call for more finance and the extent must depend on the international situation."

W. Spiegelblatt, Boy With "Upside Down Stomach," Dies at Fall River, Mass.

Fall River, Mass., April 16.—William Spiegelblatt, nine, of Newport, R.I., who underwent an operation a few days ago for a disarrangement of internal organs similar to that of Alyce Jane McEnery, died at 5 a.m., to-day at the Truesdale Hospital.

The boy was the son of Mr. and Mrs Abraham Spiegelblatt and was known as "Buddy." He had been at the hospital several days before his presence was known and the operation for diaphragmatic hernia was performed last Saturday.

Doctors at the hospital said Buddy's condition had not been normal. That he had suffered rheumatic fever three years ago and that this had affected his heart.

He was the third child operated on at the hospital for a ruptured diaphragm since March 1.

The position of the Spiegelblatt boy's internal organs was not made known prior to his operation, but it was believed his ailment was the same as that of Alyce Jane, who was operated on March 4 and now is convalescing at a nurses' home, and Jimmy Nielson, thirteen, of San Jose, Cal., who still is confined to the hospital.

spectators, a number of whom marched out.

John Black, a young man, testified food in the camps had a bad effect on the men physically, and that conditions had an evil effect on them mentally.

Earlier, one witness stated that at the Macauley Point camp in Victoria, men were "tempted" to join the militia, and if they did so were given special privileges.

ASSUMED NAMES

Yesterday afternoon the commission heard E. Cumber, secretary of the Relief Camp Workers' Union, state close to 2,000 men in Dominion relief camps in British Columbia were there under assumed names.

Mr. Cumber urged the commission not to insist that witnesses give their correct names and full particulars of their origin. "It will be used against them," he said.

"I gave evidence at the inquiry in the City Hall," Cumber said. "It was used against me and to-day I am out on bail of $1,500."

The charge, he said, was of obtaining relief fraudulently.

SWORN EVIDENCE

Chairman Macdonald insisted on correct names being given and on evidence being sworn wherever reflections on camp officials or administrators were made.

Canada's Exports In Year Reported as $137,262,496 Above Imports

Canadian Press

Ottawa, April 16.—The Department of National Revenue to-day issued figures showing total Canadian exports during the twelve months ended March 31, of $650,474,994, and imports entered for consumption of $529,212,498, giving Canada a favorable trade balance for the period of $137,262,496.

Last March total Canadian exports were valued at $58,098,630, and imports for consumption at $47,272,488. Exports were up $450,869, and imports $475,530.

CUSTOMS REVENUES

The Department of National Revenue to-day also issued figures showing customs and excise collections for last March of $17,519,040, a decrease of $469,902 compared with the March, 1934, collections. For the twelve months ended March 31, collections were placed at $226,705,905, an increase of $22,421,451, compared with collections for the previous twelve months.

Customs collections last month totaled $6,692,316, a decrease of $138,484. Excise taxes, at $7,879,678, were down $621,519, while excise duties, totaling $8,139,869, showed an increase of $515,922. Miscellaneous collections netted $70,215, down $20,890.

For the twelve-month period customs duties were $76,788,982, an increase of $10,511,786. For the same twelve months excise collections were $8,604,761 greater, at $107,504,612.

Powers At League Session Score Germany's Course

BRITISH STATEMENT

The resolution was submitted by French Foreign Minister Laval as a joint Franco-British-Italian resolution, and Sir John Simon, British Foreign Secretary, followed M. Laval with the declaration:

"His Majesty's Government joins with the French and Italian governments in presenting the draft resolution for consideration of the Council of the League. We hope the discussions will show the Council is prepared to accept it and make it effective as a resolution of the Council.

"The reason why the three powers, Italy, France and Great Britain, have taken the initiative in bringing this matter before their colleagues on the Council will be apparent when I remind you the final declaration made by the three powers at Stresa was in the following terms:

"The three powers, whose policy is the collective maintenance of peace within the framework of the League of Nations, find themselves in complete agreement in opposing by all practicable means in their power any unilateral repudiation of treaties which might endanger the peace of Europe, and will act in close and cordial collaboration with each other."

IN LEAGUE

"That," he continued, "was the final declaration at Stresa. Now I wish to call to your attention the statement in the declaration that this collaboration in policy is for the purpose of collective maintenance of peace within the framework of the League."

Here Sir John repeated the words—"within the framework of the League," to give them emphasis.

Hence, he proceeded, he came from Stresa to Geneva, "and it is not in our character as representatives of individual nations, but as members of the League of Nations and members of the Council that we are putting forward this resolution.

"If this resolution is adopted, it will be a League resolution decided on by the members of the Council in free and open consultation with themselves, and our object in putting it forward is to join with our colleagues here in the Council in appropriate action.

IN THREE PARTS

The resolution was divided into three parts.

"First," said Sir John, "it affirms the duty of us all to respect the undertakings we have contracted, and although the occasion which leads to the passing of this resolution is the action of a particular power on which the Council is called to pronounce, we must resolve to observe this duty impartially towards all.

"The second part of the resolution urges continuance of the negotiations initiated at London on February 1—continuance of these negotiations not only by the governments which took part in that conference, but by all the other governments which have given their approval or encouragement to it. In fact, this second part of the resolution amounts to approval by the Council of the London (Anglo-French) programme.

"I should be very glad if the effort then made at London should be thus expressly set within the framework of the League.

"The third part of the resolution proposes we should examine afresh what measures are appropriate and practicable to render the covenant of the League more effective in the organization of collective security and to provide in the future for more effective observance of those obligations on which peace specially rests.

SIMPLE PROPOSALS

"These seem to me to be simple proposals, well justified by the circumstances which called us together. The resolution closes no door to the future. On the contrary, if we adopt it it will show the League of Nations is united in maintaining the cause for which it was founded, while all doors are left open for reaching by further negotiations that general settlement so necessary for the continued peace and security of the world."

The public galleries and space for newspapermen were crammed as the public meeting opened.

MUCH UNEASINESS

During his speech M. Laval, until a tense silence, declared the Reich had provoked "uneasiness in the world," and the German announcement of rearmament last month had destroyed the British and French hopes of "the solid organization of European security."

"The German initiative of March 16 must be condemned," declared the French Foreign Minister. "Measures must be foreseen to make the future operation of the Covenant more effective within the organization of collective security. The Council must take its responsibility."

Berlin, April 16.—A German government spokesman said to-night: "We cannot acknowledge such a one-sided resolution (as that introduced in the League Council by France, Great Britain and Italy). You may be certain if this goes through the League of Nations, Germany never will rejoin it."

"France and Geneva are the real accused," the government spokesman said, "yet Laval appears at Geneva as accuser, prosecutor and jury. We will remain outside the League in good company, with the United States and Japan."

Mallet Evidence At Rattenbury Trial

tenbury, the victim drew a cheque for the equivalent of $1,250 on the Bank of Montreal in London in favor of his wife. On the same day his wife drew up a cheque for $250 from her account in favor of Stoner, and the latter cashed it.

Keith Jones, a solicitor and nephew of the late Mr. Rattenbury, told the court the deceased had two children by a former marriage, and they were now in Canada. This marriage had been dissolved, and his first wife had since died. Seven years ago, Rattenbury married again in Canada.

His second wife, the accused, had a son by a former marriage, now thirteen years of age, and also had a six-year-old son by her second marriage.

FELT FAINT

Mrs. Rattenbury nearly fainted while Jones was on the witness stand. The wardress revived her with a glass of water and smelling salts.

Further evidence was that Stoner had purchased a ring on March 19, paying approximately $75 in large notes which he obtained when he cashed the cheque from Mrs. Rattenbury. The ring was sent to a hotel in Kensington, London, where both the accused were staying at the time, occupying separate rooms. Mrs. Rattenbury described Stoner to the hotel manager as her brother.

Employees of a London firm with whom Mrs. Rattenbury had an account, testified to visits by Mrs. Rattenbury and Stoner, during which they made purchases to a value of more than $200. These included everything for men's wear, including suits of pyjamas and socks, and the articles were debited to Mrs. Rattenbury's deposit account.

It was also testified before the luncheon adjournment that in addition to the $250 cheque already mentioned, Mrs. Rattenbury had drawn several smaller cheques in Stoner's benefit.

KEATING

H. R. Tanner, Keating farmer and president of the North Saanich Horticultural Association, said that with most of the spring sowing still to be done the ground was getting dry for ploughing. The seeds sown had not germinated and all crops were late. Fruitgrowers were planting out strawberries, and rain was needed immediately to offset the backwardness of all the farm crops.

Irrigation, Mr. Tanner felt, would be a great benefit to farmers throughout Saanich, as long as the rates were not too high. However, fruitgrowers would have to exercise care as overwatering would produce pulpy fruit.

W. H. Cary, former manager of the Gordon Head Fruitgrowers' Association, who owns a farm on a high spot in Gordon Head, noticed no lack of moisture. Nor did W. T. Edwards, bulb grower in the same district, who declared conditions were very satisfactory.

RELATIVES AT PIT

Wives and relatives of the missing men gathered anxiously around the pit mouth as soon as word of the explosion spread through the town. This afternoon hundreds milled about the colliery yard.

What news trickled up carried little hope.

The Allan shaft is owned by the Acadia Coal Company, a subsidiary of the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company. The parent company, insolvent, has been operated by receiver-liquidators for two years.

Major disasters in Nova Scotia's collieries over twenty-two years were as follows:

1880—Albion Mine, forty-four dead.

1882—Vale Colliery, thirteen dead.

Commons Asked To Speed Up Work

Both roads would be asked to spend $9,000,000 on repairs, Dr. Manion told the House, when urged to see that as much of the work as possible was done in railway shops.

The $15,000,000 would be advanced, Dr. Manion said, free of interest for two years. After that, interest would be expected, although, he explained, the C.N.R. would not be able to pay it if conditions did not improve.

PUBLIC WORKS

Explaining the government's works bill, Hon. H. A. Stewart, Minister of Public Works, told the House he did not think the measure would be controversial, because unemployment relief by public works had been so generally advocated. The new bill provided for an expenditure of $18,000,000 on public works, besides the proposed guarantees to the two railway companies to enable them to obtain equipment.

TENDERS CRITICIZED

The bill encountered no concerted opposition from the Liberals although some of them protested against the practice of inviting tenders from a selected list of contractors. They claimed, as a result of last year's building programme, that only Conservatives were asked to tender, but this was denied by government spokesmen.

Minister of Railways Manion told opposition members it would be impossible to spend all the railway money in the shops of the two systems. There were private firms throughout the country which deserved consideration, but all the repairs would be made in the shops, adding to available work.

If either of the railways did not desire to buy new rolling stock it need not accept the government's offer, Dr. Manion said. The railways were not being forced into fresh expenditures, but it had been represented they needed locomotives and cars.

Hon. J. C. Elliott, Liberal, West Middlesex, Ont., said he had information that every contractor invited to tender on the large items of last year's bill was a "militant supporter" of the government.

Minister of Public Works Stewart said it was a mistake to believe friends of the government received all the contracts. He said he often had received complaints that Liberals had the preference.

Dr. Manion told Hon. W. H. Motherwell, Liberal, Melville, Sask., the construction of cars and locomotives would go to private firms.

CALLED SMOKE SCREEN

Inclusion of the Canadian National Railways in the proposed guarantee for rail equipment was a smoke screen to fool the public, said E. J. Garland, U.F.A., Bow River. It was designed to cover up another guarantee to the Canadian Pacific, a private profit-seeking corporation.

Pressure had been brought to bear on the government, he said, for a new guarantee to help out the C.P.R., and to make the proposition palatable to the public the Canadian National was to be burdened with $8,000,000 worth of unneeded equipment.

The Canadian National had deferred its maintenance along with all other railways, said Dr. Manion. He had been told by Canadian National officials they had not deferred it to a greater extent than the C.P.R., but they had never claimed they had deferred less.

"Personally, I think this is a splendid idea," said the minister. He believed it was the best possible way of giving a fillip to business and providing employment.

Hon. W. D. Euler, Liberal, North Waterloo, Ont., said the president of the (National) railway had said the equipment was not needed, and it was hard to reconcile that statement with the position of the government, particularly as Dr. Manion had sharply criticized the former government for permitting the Canadian National to make needless expenditures.

board of trustees, to make speeches, but he himself had made three speeches recently against Mr. Beatty's viewpoint. If misstatements about the C.N.R. were made, someone should correct them, but it was debatable whether Mr. Fullerton and Mr. Beatty should cover the country in a speaking vendetta.

"My own opinion," Dr. Manion said, "was that the feeling for amalgamation was so slight in spite of Mr. Beatty's arguments that there was no great body of public opinion for it in this country."

BENNETT CHANGES MIND

The discussion started while the House was considering a bill to empower the government to advance money to the C.N.R.

"There is a very eminent gentleman in this country who is going around the country spreading propaganda to injure, and he is injuring the C.N.R." said Mr. Sanderson. "I refer to the president of the C.P.R. (E. W. Beatty)."

"Apparently Mr. Bennett has changed his mind somewhat in regard to the Canadian National road," said Mr. Sanderson, after referring to earlier statements by Mr. Bennett in opposition to amalgamation. In 1933 Mr. Bennett "virtually said the road was bankrupt."

"That is not true," he went on. One of the greatest assets of this country is the Canadian National road." He said such statements were calculated to injure the road and showed bad judgment on the part of Mr. Bennett.

All Mr. Bennett meant in the reference quoted, said Dr. Manion, was the plain fact that if the government did not meet its deficits the Canadian National would not be able to meet its obligations and would go into a receivership. He meant no reflection on the Canadian National.

OPPOSED BY BOTH

Hon. W. D. Euler, Liberal, North Waterloo, Ont., said he would not discuss amalgamation as both the government and Opposition were committed to an opposite policy. He gave his views on the bill for a guarantee for new equipment for the C.N.R.

FREE TO REPLY

Flat denial that Chairman Fullerton, of the Board of Trustees of the Canadian National has ever been muzzled by the government was made by Dr. Manion as he attacked published statements. The minister was speaking in answer to a question from W. W. Kennedy, Conservative, Winnipeg South Centre, who asked if certain newspaper articles were founded on "fantasy or fact."

The matter concerned Mr. Fullerton's right to reply to speeches favoring amalgamation of the railways made by E. W. Beatty. Mr. Fullerton was now and always had been free to reply to Mr. Beatty, said Dr. Manion.

S. INSULL AGAIN TO FACE TRIAL

Chicago, April 16.—The United States government has chosen to make one last effort to punish Samuel Insull and his colleagues for an alleged criminal transfer of the assets of Corporation Securities Company of Chicago, with foreknowledge of its collapse.

Acquitted of charges of embezzlement and larceny and a gigantic mail fraud conspiracy, Insull and eight others, including his son, Samuel Jr., must face trial for the alleged removal of $2,556,120 from the company treasury before they will stand clear. Attorney-General Homer Cummings at Washington yesterday concurred in the recommendation of District Attorney Dwight H. Green that he proceed with the trial.

The indictment alleges that Insull and his co-directors of the Corporation Securities Company declared $556,120 in dividends virtually on the eve of the filing of a bankruptcy petition against the company, and that more than $2,000,000 in cash and securities was removed from the treasury to be pledged as collateral for loans from Chicago and New York banks.

Civil Service Changes Urged

Commission Tells Commons Permanent Appointments Are Too Few

Canadian Press

Ottawa, April 16.—Promotion conditions within the civil service of Canada are unsatisfactory, according to the annual report of the Civil Service Commission, tabled in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon. Last year there were ninety-four promotions only, while 235 civil servants were boosted to acting rank only.

"This is eminently unsatisfactory," says the report. "In the opinion of the commission the small economies which are rendered possible by the procedure in vogue in no way compensates for the dissatisfaction and unrest which the policy has caused throughout the service.

"The commission believes that when an employee is required to assume the duties of a position more difficult and responsible than that which he has been occupying, the necessity for the position having been investigated and established, it is sound employment practice that he should receive the compensation attached to it, and urges that such a policy be again adopted."

Last year there were 22,000 applications for positions in the civil service, the report says. A total of 12,400 were examined.

Of the appointments made forty-two were permanent and 2,333 temporary. Forty males, of whom twenty-three were exservice men, were placed in permanent positions, while of the 1,879 given temporary employment, 609 were veterans.

STRANGE SCENE AT COURTHOUSE

New York, April 16.—Several thousand negroes and white persons staged a demonstration here yesterday with all the fervor of a southern camp meeting when Father Divine, the negro who is literally a god to many of his race in Harlem, was acquitted in the court of special sessions of a charge of operating an unlicensed boarding house for children.

"Peace! Peace! It's wonderful! Peace, father, he is god!" shouted hundreds of his followers in a delirium of fervor in the grim halls of the Criminal Court Building.

Outside in bustling Lafayette Street, beside the frowning battlements of the Tombs Prison, other thousands took up the rhythmic chant of "Peace! Peace!" as they crowded around the smiling, bald-pated "deity" and his satellite, Faithful Mary, acquitted with him.

Negroes and white persons kissed and embraced each other in the streets. Traffic slowed to a standstill as devotees of the magnetic saviour of New York's black belt eagerly sought to touch his garments and crowded around his Rolls-Royce of robin's egg blue.

Without another word, the officer swung his machine ahead, opened the siren and escorted the taxi to the hospital portal.

To the men's amazement, the young woman leaped from the car, hurried into the hospital and returned in a few moments without the baby garments. She was a school nurse who had taken cast-off baby clothes where they would do the most good.

FUMES DAMAGE SETTLEMENT

Canada and U.S. Sign Agreement Ending Trail-Washington State Case

Canadian Press

Ottawa, April 16.—A convention has been signed for final settlement of the difficulties arising out of complaints of damage done in the state of Washington by fumes discharged from the smelter of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company at Trail, B.C., it was announced to-day.

The convention was signed by Premier R. B. Bennett for Canada and by Pierre de L. Boal, charge d'affaires ad interim, for the United States.

The convention will be submitted for approval to the Canadian Parliament and the United States Senate.

COMMISSION REPORTED

The dispute which the convention provides for settling arose out of complaints of damage caused in the state of Washington by sulphur fumes from the Trail smelter, which is situated in British Columbia near the United States boundary. The question was referred to the International Joint Commission under the Boundary Waters Treaty for examination and report. The report of the commission, which was made on February 28, 1931, was not acceptable to the United States in some particulars.

Agreement has now been reached for settlement of all damages which occurred in the United States prior to January 1, 1932, as recommended by the International Joint Commission, and the establishment of a tribunal of three jurists to effect a settlement of the complaints of damage arising since that date. The damages up to January 1, 1932, were agreed at $350,000.

Secret Serum Cures Ape-man

Associated Press

Los Angeles, April 16. — Intravenous injections of a "life-restoring" serum which Dr. Frank G. Nolan, Hollywood physician and surgeon, terms "Formula X" for the sake of secrecy, has removed, he says, all "ape-like" appearance from G. Bocklet, forty-nine, Azusa, Calif., commercial artist, whose strange ailment at first he believed to be reversing the evolutionary process.

Dr. Nolan disclosed yesterday that Bocklet had made such rapid recovery from the disease, which he said made him feel like an "ape man," that he had permitted him to leave the hospital. To-day he left his Azusa home for Hollywood, where Dr. Nolan will keep him for further serum injections.

The physician declined to reveal the composition or source of the secret serum, which he claims is restoring the "shrinking man" to normal appearance.

Although Dr. Nolan said Bocklet was afflicted with a variety of ailments, he attributed the man's general deformation to Padget's disease. When Bocklet first came to his attention Dr. Nolan believed he was gradually shrinking to death, and was certain to die within two years.

A strange reaction from injection of the serum, Dr. Nolan said, is that Bocklet continually stretches, and the physician believes this form of exercise will be beneficial in enabling the patient's body to return to its normal shape.

A final decision in a New York poultry case, selected by the government as ideal for the purpose, is expected before the present term of the court ends late in May or early in June. Arguments will be heard May 2.

Calgary, April 16 (Canadian Press).—Rev. T. T. Paichney, minister of Wesley United Church, Calgary, yesterday announced he had decided to accept a call to the Union Protestant Church at Tientsin, China.

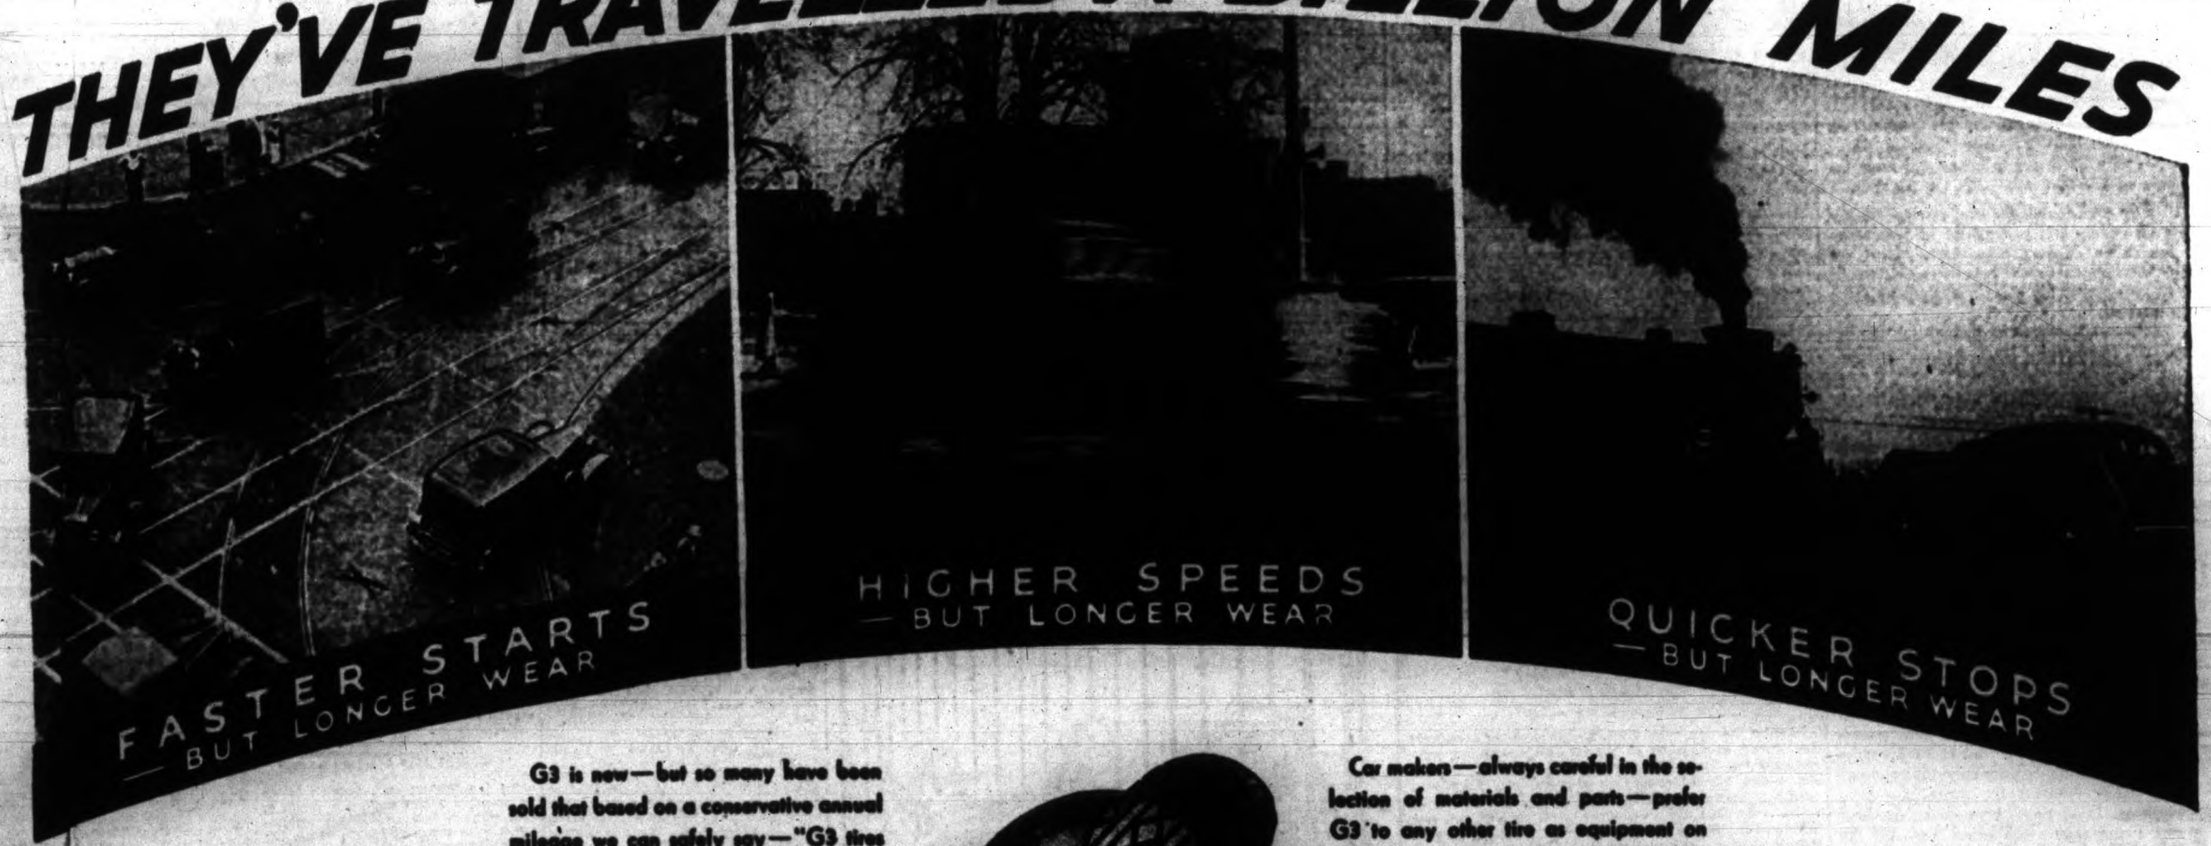
THEY'VE TRAVELLED A BILLION MILES



MILEAGE OF NEW G3 EQUAL TO 40,000 TIMES AROUND THE WORLD

G3 is new—but so many have been sold that based on a conservative annual mileage we can safely say—"G3 tires already have travelled more than a billion miles on Canadian cars." This takes G3 definitely out of the experimental stage. It is proven!

Goodyear engineers produced G3 to meet the strains and jars of modern traffic conditions. It maintained its tread pattern after the severest driving tests ever given a tire. Its performance resulted in the greatest sale in Goodyear's history.

GOODYEAR MEANS GOOD WEAR

Car makers—always careful in the selection of materials and parts—prefer G3 to any other tire as equipment on their latest models. It is a worthy running mate for the modern car—a tread that withstands the fierce grinding wear of today's faster starts, higher speeds, quicker stops.

G3 has extra-deep grooves—close-set diamonds—wider riding ribs. Go to a Goodyear dealer and compare G3 with the tires you are now using. . . . You'll understand at once why it far outsells any other tire.

G3 is made in both 4 ply & heavy duty 6 ply types

OIL FROM COAL

ONE OF THE IMPORTANT POINTS brought out by Mr. Alan Chambers in a brief presented to the Royal Commission inquiring into the fuel industry of British Columbia was that if the requirements of Vancouver Island in the matter of fuel could be met by their production from coal, work would be provided for approximately double the miners now employed. The present force is 3,600, or considerably more than half the number engaged in the industry in the whole of British Columbia.

We are faced with the melancholy fact that during the period between 1914 and 1934 coal production on Vancouver Island has fallen to such an extent that only half the number of men working in the mines twenty years ago are now employed. With this in mind, Mr. Chambers refers to the alarm over the decline in the coal industry which has been expressed from time to time in Great Britain. Under the circumstances, therefore, the principle is being accepted that the future of the British coal mining industry depends upon its ability to turn coal into fuel oil and motor spirit. As a result, many and varied experiments along these lines have been made during the last few years. From these experiments two processes have emerged which have proved to be commercially feasible. They are the extraction of these by-products from coal by the processes of: (1) low-temperature carbonization, (2) hydrogenation.

The success of these operations in Great Britain is dealt with by Mr. Chambers in his brief with a wealth of illuminating detail. He points out that eleven factories in England are using the low-temperature carbonization method with highly-satisfactory results, three of these factories, incidentally, running night and day since 1927. The product is a gasoline of a very high anti-knock quality and especially suited for aviation use. Seven squadrons of the Royal Air Force now are using this spirit and two naval vessels are being fired by the oil recovered.

The brief relates that the hydrogenation method concentrates upon the production of gasoline mainly because of its high price, although any type of motor spirit or combustion oil may be obtained in this way. The main plant in Great Britain, Mr. Chambers shows, recovers more than ninety gallons from one ton of coal. This is described as a very high quality gasoline costing fourteen cents a gallon at the factory which is treating 360,000 tons annually. At the factory to which we have referred, moreover, there are 1,500 men permanently employed and more than 1,000 additional miners dig the necessary coal.

Mr. Chambers concluded his brief with a suggestion to the Royal Commission that in its report it draw the attention of the government of British Columbia to the facts set forth and a further recommendation that they also be laid before the Dominion Government so that the two governments may consider the advisability of co-operating in taking such steps as may be proper to bonus and assist the establishment of a similar industry in this province.

As already emphasized, the coal mining industry of British Columbia, and particularly of Vancouver Island, has fallen on very lean times. It is not necessary to enlarge upon the benefits which would accrue to this island if the present coal mining force could be doubled.

STOCK WATERING

AN IMPORTANT RECOMMENDATION of the Royal Commission on Mass Buying deals with stock watering, a vicious evil of modern business economics and one of the chief contributors to the depression and its duration. The Commission recommends the appointment of a securities board to review and investigate the capital structure of all companies incorporated under federal law which desire to sell stock to the public; to pass on all such issues; to scrutinize the advertising and other publicity affecting these issues, which can not be made if their terms are not satisfactory to the board. Other far-reaching provisions also are included, with the suggestion that the whole question should be covered by changes in the companies legislation or by the Criminal Code.

Public exploitation by the excessive issue of securities has become almost a commonplace and, particularly in boom times, has left a trail of bankruptcies and corruption which have seriously imperilled national stability. In many instances the issues have been entirely worthless, being away beyond the dividend capacity of the companies which issued them, and the money of those who have bought them has gone into the pockets of a few cynical manipulators.

Some basically splendid properties involved in the development of essential resources have been prostituted to this criminal greed, and it is high time the authorities imposed drastic regulations and penalties for the curbing of this practice. Unless some such action is taken these will be a public reaction some day which will shake the very foundations of the country.

It should be an even greater crime to obtain millions from the public under false pretences through the issue of worthless securities than it is to obtain funds by the ordinary misrepresentation defined in the present criminal law, and there should be legislation which specifically declares it to be so and fixes appropriate punishment.

SOMEWHAT IRONICAL

FRANCE'S ARRAIGNMENT OF GERMANY before the Council of the League of Nations is not without a certain ironical touch contributed by the record of the last few years. The French document charges Germany with the violation of her treaty obligations, which, it says, compromises the success of international negotiations for the limitation of armaments under the auspices of the League, and has precipitated rearmament throughout Europe.

"No negotiation is possible," the French government adds, "if, while conversations are proceeding, one of the parties can arbitrarily possess himself of that which was the subject of negotiation. Nor can there be any negotiation of service if its results, whatever they may be, can be destroyed at the will of one of the contracting parties."

This sounds very much like the case which was presented by China to the League when Japan began to possess herself of Manchuria, a case to which the major powers, however, paid scant practical attention until Japan had virtually gobbled up this large area of Chinese territory, incidentally violating the Covenant of the League, the Nine Power Treaty and the Kellogg Pact. Indeed, Japan's course was much more reprehensible than that of Germany, since Hitler at least can point to the neglect of the other powers to observe the terms of the treaty of Versailles in regard to disarmament.

If the major powers of the League had taken a strong stand when Japanese aggression in Manchuria began, as they were supposed to do in such circumstances under the Covenant of the League, Germany might not have torn the Treaty of Versailles to tatters. They did not take that stand because, first, Manchuria is far away and the looting of China did not imperil their own security, and, second, because they thought it would be better business to keep on the good side of Japan. It will be interesting to see what will happen to Ethiopia's appeal to the League. Ethiopia also is far away.

THE SANDERSON PROTEST

MR. F. R. SANDERSON, A MEMBER OF the House of Commons, has drawn attention to what he describes as a campaign of propaganda to discredit the Canadian National Railways and thus keep the idea of the unification of the two systems continuously before the Canadian people.

Mr. Sanderson asked if the government could not do something to stop or combat this insistent propaganda. He declared that, in his opinion, Mr. Beatty was attempting to poison the minds of the people against their own railway and to depreciate it so that his company eventually could gobble it up and operate the two systems in Canada.

As Minister of Railways, Hon. R. J. Manion informed Mr. Sanderson that it was hardly within his province to instruct Hon. C. P. Fullerton, chairman of the board of trustees of the Canadian National Railways, to take the platform and wage a wordy war with Mr. Beatty. He reminded the House, however, that he himself within recent weeks had made several speeches on the subject in which he expressed views in direct conflict with those put forth by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's president.

"My opinion," Dr. Manion observed, "was that the feeling for amalgamation was so slight in spite of Mr. Beatty's arguments that there was no great body of public opinion for it in this country."

Under the circumstances, Mr. Fullerton, chairman of the C.N.R. Board, has shown considerable restraint, for only on one occasion has he dealt at any length or in any detail with the statements made by Mr. Beatty, statements with which in many important particulars Dr. Manion has declared he does not agree. This was before a body of businessmen in Halifax where he asserted that when Mr. Beatty claimed an annual saving of $75,000,000 could be made by the adoption of his plan of unification of control he had very largely overstated the case.

No matter how many speeches directed to the consolidation of these two systems may be made it is evident that the volume of public opinion in Canada in favor of a railway monopoly is small. The best way to bring the railway systems of the country out of their financial difficulties is to press for national policies that will permit of greater trade between the Dominion and the outside world. Strange as it may seem, that element which continues to beat the amalgamation drum is the very element which has lent its aid to the party which stands for the restriction of trade and commerce by tariff protection. It has been hoist with its own petard.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

THE RULING EMOTION
The Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph

Germany looks at her ring of potential enemies and feels the need of weapons. Russia looks at Japan in Manchuria and feels a similar need. Japan looks at powerful Russia, eyes the United States fleet and speeds up her armament preparations. The United States, with a nervous glance at Japan, builds up her fleet. And so it goes; the upshot being that there is no more expensive emotion in all the world to-day than this same fear.

PATERNALISM TRIUMPHANT
The Ottawa Journal

Under the new conditions, with everybody seemingly desperately anxious to be graded and controlled, government has become a vast clearing house for all the ills, follies, hopes and ambitions of society. Rightly or wrongly, paternalism is the order of the day, a form of collectivism that our forefathers never dreamed of, and with it has come a revolution in the character of government, and additions to the task of government, for which government is not equipped.

JOHN BUCHAN TO CANADA
The New York Sun

The report that John Buchan will be the next Governor-General of Canada is good news to all literate conservatives living on this side of the Atlantic . . . . It would be, of course, extraordinary for a commoner to be appointed to the highly honorable post of Governor-General of Canada. But this would not be the first time for Colonel Buchan to be singled out for a comparable distinction; he was a commoner when he was appointed to the post of Lord High Commissioner of the Church of Scotland. He is a man whom our energetic, democratic and capable neighbors to the north may well take to their hearts. If he will but bring John MacNab with him and turn that worthy adventurer loose in the Laurentians, there will be more of us from this side of the St. Lawrence passing our vacations in Canada than ever before.

Loose Ends

A mortal insult is hurled at Victoria—out of Vancouver, of course — but one must take these things calmly and face the facts—Miss West confesses that she Done Us Wrong—and one gets out of touch with modern life.

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

MONSTROUS

MR. JAMES BUTTERFIELD, of The Vancouver Province, rises, with customary effrontery, to suggest that the Parliament Buildings of Victoria and other buildings erected by the late Mr. Rattenbury are "architectural inconsequences," and adds that they should be "sufficient excuse" for the murder of the architect. "Nothing," he says, "can wipe out the monstrosity at Victoria. The conclusion of this drama should be a warning to all architects."

This sympathetic reference to a dead man and to the trial of two human beings for murder need not concern us here, even though it is accompanied with Mr. Butterfield's regret that "American ideals are gaining ground in England." After reading his Hearstlike remarks, one can't escape the conclusion that they have already gained a lot of ground with Mr. Butterfield. But that is another matter. The point which touches our honor and reputation is the attack on our Parliament Buildings and our other architectural inconsequences, which evidently include the Empress Hotel.

The fact that Vancouver would dearly love to have both the buildings and the hotel, I admit, is no defence of their beauty. Vancouver would take anything it would get, whether it were beautiful or not, swallowing up British Columbia like a whale.

It is a temptation, of course, to fly into a civic rage at this affront, to forget one's Victorian calm and superiority, to behave like a citizen of Calgary with an inferiority complex. Even the most philosophical and superior cannot escape some trace of village pride which makes them resent a smack in the eye. But let us look at this thing calmly and deliberately, without attempting to lynch Mr. Butterfield in the Calgary fashion.

What is the truth? Are the Parliament Buildings a monstrosity? Is the Empress Hotel an architectural inconsequence? One might also ask, if they are, then what does Mr. Butterfield call the City Hall of Vancouver and the Vancouver Hotel? But that does not answer the question either.

CIVIC BOAST

THE QUESTION at issue is the monstrosity of our buildings and the inconsequence of our hotel. For a generation now we have boasted of them with, of course, our customary self-restraint and gentility. For a generation we have sent pictures of them around the world and showed them to visitors with a refined and genteel pride. Can it be that the world has only smiled at our pretensions? Can it be that visitors have only laughed behind our backs with Mr. Butterfield?

To-day I stood on the Causeway and looked at the Building and the Empress for a long time, until passers-by began to think there was something wrong with me. The hotel, I decided, was not architecturally inconsequential, but highly satisfactory. The Building, to tell the truth among ourselves, did appear just a little rotund, sleek and fussy, like a fat man wearing too much jewelry. I fear, alas, I shall never see it again without certain private suspicions, without remembering that, to the unprejudiced eye, it may appear monstrous.

It was unkind, indeed, for Mr. Butterfield to plant such doubts in our innocent Victorian minds; but I cheer right up when I think of the architecture of Vancouver. On the whole, it is probably better for us to go on believing that the Building is beautiful, for beautiful or not it is likely to remain with us for a long time yet. It is like our wives. Somehow we have to go to live with them, and if we can retain a few illusions we'd better do it. Still, it is a disagreeable thought, isn't it?

SWINDLE

MISS MAY WEST must be feeling the pinch of the purity crusade pretty badly. She has come out with a strong defensive statement in which she says she has done much to bring healthy entertainment to the movies "because I never took sex seriously; I kidded it." She is opposed, she says, to "nudity, crudity and vulgarity in all forms . . . . My pictures aren't bad. They don't shock me."

Thousands will be disappointed in Mae. The world went snorting to her pictures like pigs to a trough, under the impression that they were full of nudity, crudity and vulgarity in all forms, in the pathetic notion that they were wicked, in the innocent belief that they were nothing but sex, taken seriously. And now it turns out that she was just fooling us all the time. The pictures weren't the real thing at all. Mae has just been kidding.

Really the theatres should give us our money back. It is one of the great swindles of all time. Mae has done us all wrong. But if those pictures weren't full of nudity, crudity, vulgarity and sex, just what were they full of? What did the public go to see them for?

Miss West has found out that it is dangerous to kid the public. It will almost invariably take you seriously. When you are nude and crude and vulgar it will almost invariably assume that you are nude and crude and vulgar. It will hardly ever suspect that you are clothed and refined and genteel.

I found that out when I once tried to kid a certain prairie city. People are too literal and matter-of-fact; but still, it was a good thing for Mae. If they hadn't thought they were getting something really sinful, they wouldn't have gone to her shows at all.

OUT OF TOUCH

IT IS VERY upsetting, when you have been away from town for some time, to come back and find yourself utterly out of touch with the more important events of the world. I mean, of course, the comics. One can always catch up with the front page. It doesn't matter that you have missed three threats of war in Europe and six new crises at Ottawa. There will always be plenty more of both.

But with the comics, when you have missed a week, you can never catch up again. You can never find out what has happened to Boots or why Ella Cinders seems to be surrounded by villains and Uncle Bim has lost sixteen pounds in weight. I tried persistently to get back into the swing of our times. I read the comics faithfully for three nights, but I couldn't make head or tail of them. They have gone literary and have plots and incidents and trimmings of all sorts, which get out of your control in less than a week.

It was far better when each strip ended with some fellow knocking some other fellow over the head with a club. That happened every night, so you could cut in where you pleased and always get back into the swim, back into the current of civilization, at a moment's notice. I have had to give up the comics altogether and satisfy myself with the approaching war in Europe and Mr. Stevens's manful attempt to prevent the leak of official news out of Ottawa. It makes life exceedingly dull and you feel very much out of it. You feel that you don't really know what is going on in the world.

CREMATION

To the Editor:—May I express an opinion on what I consider an aspect of modern paganism, to wit—the funeral?

Why, may I ask, should a family be burdened with the useless expense of flowers, embalming, funeral procession, and a hole in the ground, in order to dispose of a body? May I add that it takes fourteen years for a body to disintegrate, under usual burial conditions, which is, to say the least, unhygienic.

Now why shouldn't a body be cremated, with no unnecessary ceremony, a most sanitary and speedy disposal. The cost is negligible. Under these circumstances, the living are not burdened by the dead or, if the living insist on the burden, the money could be used to further the cause of preventive medicine.

PROGRESSIVE

NEW GOVERNOR-GENERAL

To the Editor:—The only objection Lieut.-Col. C. R. Hodgins has to the appointment of John Buchan as Governor-General of Canada seems to be the fact that he is not an old-established member of the British peerage. Could he tell us why a member of the peerage is better suited to the position than a commoner. I, for one, will feel more like giving the hand of welcome to a commoner than to a lord or a baron. He is more one of us and I feel sure Mr. Buchan will abolish much of the unnecessary pomp and affectation connected with Rideau Hall. Why Col. Hodgins should object to a man of letters, who is well and favorably known on this continent already, and is evidently popular in the United States, I cannot quite see. The New York Times recently had some very nice things to say of Mr. Buchan, and I think it means a great deal to us to have the United States friendly to Ottawa. As the post has not been abolished altogether, I think Mr. Buchan is as good as anyone, and possibly will make a far better Governor-General than many we have had.

YOUNG CANADIAN.

OUR NATIVES

To the Editor:—There has been quite a plea on behalf of our natives who have been passed over in the appointment of the Governor-General. I have never heard of the Indian coveting any of our government posts and therefore I feel all the energy used on their behalf is wasted.

If these writers want to do a real public service why do they not try to right some of the gross injustice in our own province? We are only a handful of people, but we maintain a government with staff enough to run the Dominion with all the pomp and glory of a Roman Empire together with a staff of lately appointed, high-paid supernumeraries.

We plan to pay an engineer $200,000 to look after the famous Vancouver Bridge during three years' construction period, and the contractor is to get $225,000 for boosting the job, force account may considerably increase the above, while men certified unfit for work are supposed to live on 25 cents a day! Our governing bodies are restoring salary cuts despite the fact that three-quarters of the taxpayers are going without many of the necessities of life.

CANUCK.

SCOUT GATHERING

To the Editor:—As one who is interested in the Boy Scout movement, and who was among the 2,000 spectators who thrilled with the wonderful exhibition given by Scouts and Guides of Vancouver Island at the Willows on Saturday, I would draw to the attention of local scouting officials a feature which, I feel, is developing and will ultimately destroy a great accomplishment of scouting.

I refer to the militarism introduced into the movement, in Victoria at any rate, with the organization of a drum and bugle corps. Without in any way desiring to detract from the efficiency of the bugle corps as such, I would suggest to local officials that it be done away with immediately.

The march-past on Saturday for the Chief Scout and Chief Guide was a truly colorful spectacle, but it would have been just as thrilling and just as colorful without the addition of the drum and bugle contingent. This aggregation, to me, appeared to lend a militaristic note to the proceedings, a fact which does not align itself with the Scout objective of promoting international goodwill by peace.

The authorities here might take note of the fact that while the Chief Scout said nothing of a detrimental nature about the corps, he did not make (publicly, at least) any praiseworthy comment about it, when surely this was warranted if bugle and drum corps were generally accepted in scouting.

AN EX-SCOUT.

"CHURCH AND UNEMPLOYED"

To the Editor:—Mr. Coton's letter in to-day's Times invites a reply to one written last week. We sympathize with some of his views on the unemployment question with its lack of effectual remedy.

He confuses, however, the two distinct kinds of churches in the world to-day. He mentions almost in one breath, the organized church, which is a human institution composed of saved and unsaved members alike, and "His Church," that spiritual organism founded by the Lord Jesus Christ Himself, and of which He is the Head, whose body is composed of believing members found, some inside and the others outside the pales of the organized churches. Their names may be or may not be found written on any of the organized churches' rolls, but they are most certainly found written in the Lamb's book of life!

The organized church bases its work on reformation and works from the outside toward the inside; its work is merely whitewashing and is a failure! That organism: the Church of Christ, is based on regeneration only and works through the Holy Spirit of God from the inside toward the outside and is washing-white the human heart through the shed blood of the Lord Jesus Christ, thus complying with His teachings: "Ye must be born again!"—"Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these (temporal) things shall be added unto you!"

That the social reform which Mr. Coton seeks has never, and will never succeed, we witness to-day, the root of the matter, man's heart, the seat of all his sentiments, not being first dealt with. The present conditions shall not alter till the Red of the Church, the Lord Jesus Christ, shall return in person to rule in justice and equity over this mad misruled world.

His coming, and that one, is the Hope of the World, is this His Church is hourly waiting praying: "Even so come, Lord Jesus! Amen!" This is the believer's answer to Christ's own promise "Behold! I come quickly!" L. BEKEMAN.

THE NEW GOVERNOR-GENERAL

To the Editor:—In your issue of to-day Mr. A. H. Allen gives a list of distinguished Canadian who have risen to high positions in other countries. This effectually linches our argument, all the more so as Mr. Allen states that the positions were "of exceedingly greater importance than the post of Governor-General." What more is needed unless there are people so bigoted that they think that a Canadian, like a prophet, should be "not without honor save in his own land"? That, of course, we couldn't tolerate for a moment.

The line of Kipling fitted so he suggests will read: "What do they know of Canada who only England know?" And the ignorance in England about Canada is colossal. I could give numerous instances but space does not permit. I am one of the many Canadians who have gone outside and looked at themselves and I have come back proud of my country and countrymen. If he wants to know what they did in South Africa, ask the late of General Cronje, and in the last war they were referred to as the spearhead of the British army. So good was I of their doings that I told the Canadian Adjutant-General that if Canadians serving in the Imperial army should be allowed to wear "Canada" on their shoulder straps, but, alas, he told me that many were removing this distinction in order to save their pockets. I see no difference between Canadian-born and British-born; they are one and indistinct.

Mr. Allen does not understand this "adverse criticism." Well, just let him think what would happen in Britain if Mr. Ramsay MacDonald attempted to put Mr. John Buchan on the throne. An armed rebellion without a doubt, and yet the position of Governor-General represents the throne to us, we are particular as to who occupies it, for we honor and respect our King.

We do not want a Governor-General "forced upon" us from anywhere and Mr. Allen need not fear any threat from Japan. If he will look up the regrettable year of 1812 he will find that Canada, then a small colony with no navy and practically no army, was invaded from the United States, but at the close of that campaign not a hostile foot stood on Canadian soil and Canadians held

"Maharani" and "Harem" Gowns At Style Show

Oriental Influence in Glamorous Styles at Angus Campbell's Easter Revue To-day; Lovely Bridal Group Also Featured

"Maharani" and "harem" gowns brought a touch of the mystic Orient to the Easter fashion show staged this morning and afternoon at Angus Campbell and Co. Ltd., adding exotic glamor to a colorful revue.

ORIENTAL ALLURE

Dame Fashion, always seeking something intriguing, went to India for the maharani gown and adapted it to occidental usage by interpreting it, as shown to-day, in a dinner gown of vivid magenta chiffon. Hindu blue embroidery edged the clever draping on the skirt and cape-like collar, the end of which was brought over the head and held across the mouth, in purdah effect.

Persia supplied the inspiration for the glamorous "harem" gown, which would add piquancy to any dinner party. Of black marquisette, the very bouffant skirt was caught beneath the hem in harem effect, while the slim bodice with its row of black buttons marking the low decolletage at the back, had bouffant short sleeves.

FROM SUNDOWN TO SUNUP

Frocks suitable for every occasion from sundown to sunup and from sunup to sundown, were included in the display. Acting as mannequins were Mrs. H. N. Ley, and the Misses Gurton, Ball, Knapton and Morrison.

As a grand finale an Easter wedding was depicted. Miss Ball was the lovely bride in a form-fitting frock of white Nottingham lace of exquisite design. Of chaste severity, it depended for its appeal upon its beauty of line, the long skirt flaring into a train at the back, while the slender bodice was finished with a square-cut neck outlined with white gardenias, and long, tight-fitting sleeves. The veil of filmy tulle was arranged in novel fashion, falling from the back of a coronet of orange blossoms, and not covering the head in the usual way. In place of the conventional bouquet, the bride carried a white prayer-book, showered with white satin ribbons, pink sweet peas and forget-me-nots.

In the bridal retinue were two bridesmaids and two maids of honor. The bridesmaids wore charming bouffant frocks in dusty pink and ciel blue silk net respectively.

Both were similarly made of net over taffeta, with horizontal bandings of the net from waist to hem, the waistline girdled with silk crepe in a contrasting color falling in long sash ends at the back, while a shoulder cape of ruffled net covered the sleeveless bodice. Both wore demure Regency bonnets of stitched silk to match their gowns, with a spray of tiny flowers in color to match their sashes, peeping beneath the brim.

In place of bouquets they carried adorable little muffs of shirred net to match their gowns, on which were posed hand-made flowers of silk to match their girdles.

The maids of honor wore coin-dotted silk net, one in crevecho pink, the other in leaf green. A tiny peplum effect marked the waist, and short full, puff sleeves and square neckline, and a diagonal frill on the skirt were charming features. Both wore large, floppy Leghorn hats, and carried sheaves of Spring Glory daffodils. All the flowers in the bridal procession were supplied by Brown's Nurseries.

GLAMOROUS EVENING GOWNS

Glamorous evening and dinner gowns, gowns for the cocktail hour and the formal afternoon party, were shown in bewildering variety. One exquisite evening gown of white taffeta, worn by Mrs. Ley, flaunted a Toby collar of the taffeta, from which the gown fell in svelte lines, hugging the figure, until it reached the floor, when it swept out in a brief train. Over it she wore one of the newest and smartest evening wraps of white quilted taffeta of hip-length, with wide sleeves and upstanding collar.

Paris inspired the very lovely formal gown of chartreuse green taffeta with its intriguing high-necked effect and rever-like effect in front, the back opened near the waistline and caught together at the high neck—a new note. Trimmings are noticeably absent, clever manipulation of the materials and slinky lines providing the smart silhouette.

PATTERNED OR PLAIN

Patterned fabrics vie with plain materials in popularity. One lovely cocktail gown, suitable for any time from sundown to sunup, was of printed primrose taffeta, over which

Renounces Veil To Take Up Stage

Canadian Press from Havas

Paris, April 16.—Maryse Wendling, young French actress, has decided to return to the stage after having served her novitiate in a convent. She asked for her liberty two days before taking the veil.

Entering the convent a year ago, she vowed she was through with the outside world and bade farewell to her public. Her religious faith is still intact, she says.

Bridegroom Says "No" at the Altar

Sensation Stops Wedding of Young Couple at English Church; Marriage Postponed Previously.

London, April 16.—Amazing scenes were witnessed at West Hendon Baptist Church, Middlesex, recently, when a bridegroom rejected his bride, and a heated scene ensued in the vestry.

The young man was Leslie Francis Kitching, of Sturgess-avenue, Hendon, aged twenty-three.

The bride was Miss Eva Mary Horton, tall, dark, twenty-two, and fiancee for twelve months of the man who changed his mind. Her home is at Frederick-street, Mansfield, Notts.

A fortnight ago the wedding was to have taken place, but something went wrong then.

This time it seemed that the romance would have a really happy ending, and so thought friends of both families.

MUTE BRIDEGROOM

Everything went smoothly until the decisive moment was reached when the minister asked the bridegroom the question: "Wilt thou have this woman to be thy lawful wedded wife?"

"Wilt thou have this woman to be thy lawful wedded wife?" repeated Mr. Rudge, a trifle more distinctly.

"You had better sit down," he said, addressing the bride.

"I will," she said, without a trace of nervousness.

Into the vestry went young Kitching, his mother, the bride's mother and Mr. Rudge

While the argument was going on in the vestry the friends of the opposing parties in the church took sides.

One said the bridegroom had every right to stop if he wanted to; the other said nothing could excuse his letting the girl down.

Finally Mr. Rudge and the sister of the bride appeared, with Mrs. Horton, the bride's mother, between them. She was in a state of collapse They took her out of the church, and soon afterwards the bride also left.

The bridegroom and his parents came from the vestry. They went to the house from which they started, and the bride, with her mother and sister, went to the home of the bridegroom, leaving later for Mansfield.

When Miss Horton, with her mother, returned to Mansfield she told the press that she had seen Mr. Kitching and asked for an explanation. He replied: "I don't know what made me do it."

She added that the wedding had already been postponed twice, but that on this occasion Mr. Kitching had made all the arrangements and had ordered the cake.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

CHILD NEEDS BOTH PARENTS—BUT ONE CAN MANAGE

Unquestionably a child needs both parents. Each plays a different but no less vital role in his development. But in the case of a widowed or divorced mother there is no possibility of throwing up the job of parenthood because it happens to be difficult or to possess unsatisfactory aspects.

Mrs. E. T. is worried and fearful of her future problems as the mother of a boy. "My boy is three years old and I am divorced from his father. How shall I handle the question of sex? At what age should he be given information about babies? Do children stop asking their parents questions when they go to school and discuss this with children? This is rather early, but would it be advisable later to let some man talk to my boy about things he should know?"

PREPARE YOURSELF

The child's first questions are always answered by the mother. The time they are asked—which dictates the time for their answering—is usually from three to five years, usually when a baby arrives in the family or neighborhood. The child should be given a truthful, simple and unelaborated answer. Our leaflet, "Answering the Child's Questions About Babies," will show you how this is managed. A self addressed, stamped envelope sent to Myrtle Meyer Eldred care of the "Your Baby and Mine" department of this newspaper will bring this to you.

You should, meanwhile, prepare yourself for the duty and privilege of being your boy's confidant. It is a mother's own fault when children ask questions of other children or other adults. This would not happen if they knew from experience that the mother would answer them as truthfully and as satisfactorily.

BOYS NEED MEN

To prepare yourself read all you can in newspapers, magazines and books about modern child care. Join a parent study group and when your boy goes to school attend your parent-teacher meetings. Increased knowledge and understanding of the child will help to dissipate your fears of your incompetence.

The mother of a son can enrich the boy's life by sending him to a boy's school with men teachers, she should let him join character building organizations with men leaders and cultivate the friendship of the family doctor and minister. In such ways she helps the boy know men to whom he can turn with confidence when he needs them.

To-morrow—"Mother Should Learn to Recognize Symptoms of Understanding."

TRAINS GIRLS IN RIGHT WAY

Lady Baden-Powell Tells Vancouver Women of Movement's Aims

Canadian Press

Vancouver, April 16.—The Girl Guides organization gives a joy of voluntary service to every girl and woman in the adventure of every day living, declared Lady Baden-Powell in addressing a meeting of the Women's Canadian Club here yesterday.

"Young girls," she said, "are our greatest asset and our heaviest responsibility. In these days of changing tradition and thought, it is more than ever necessary to guard our young people and to make them strong. It is the woman in the house who counts."

"To-day we are continually fighting materialism, speed and selfishness. We can see the struggle in the anxious, worried faces of those about us, and we must take care that those looks of stress are not implanted on the faces of our young people. Children should be happy, contented, healthy and helpful and we must train them in their duty towards others and the community in general.

"In Guiding," she explained, "we try to train the youngsters in body, and spirit and, further, we inculcate in them a sense of friendliness that must do a great deal to counteract the unspeakable war-mindedness fostered by some people to-day. We must be allies in the cause of the young and of peace."

Mrs. Alan Morkill of Victoria, Provincial Guide Commissioner, and Lt.-Col. B. Walton, Chief Rover, gave brief addresses and were followed with a second address by Lady Baden-Powell upon the request of the president, Mrs. F. G. Lewis.

In her second address Lady Baden-Powell described some of the amazing growth of Scouting and Guiding she had seen in nearly every country while touring the world with her husband.

"We are deeply touched with the welcome we have been accorded in Canada," she said.

A corporate membership will be paid to the newly-formed Victoria branch of the John Howard Society of British Columbia, with Mrs. McPhee as institute delegate to the meetings. The per capita tax fees to the South Vancouver Island district board will be forwarded.

Several new members were present and introduced to the members. Mrs. Schmeis, convener of the March ways and means committee, gave a report of the work of her committee, which included a luncheon and bridge party, a fancy dress party and a card party, also the drawing for a china tea set, which was won by Miss Barbara Shotton. The three little Solarium patients adopted by the institute will receive the usual Easter baskets.

NEW ORDER TO HONOR WOMEN

Recognition to Be Enlarged in Connection With Royal Jubilee Celebrations

Canadian Press Cable

London, April 16.—It is understood a new honors order for women, or at least their admission to another of the existing orders, is under consideration in court circles in connection with the Jubilee celebrations.

At present women may enter only the order of the companionship of honor and the orders of the British Empire and Crown of India. The companionship honor is limited to a total of fifty, and the crown of India is reserved for recognition of women's work in India, so far as women are concerned.

The Queen is the only woman holding the order of the Garter, but in mediaeval times it was usual for several women members of the Royal family to be included.

The Royal Victoria Order, which is bestowed in recognition of personal service to the King and members of the Royal House, might possibly be enlarged to include women.

rioted huge flowers in scarlet green grapes and leaves, had a separate wrap of hip-length in the material, with cleverly cut cape sleeves lined with plain scarlet taffeta.

Afternoon frocks range from taffetas with the shirt-waist influence, to lace in lovely design and chiffons flaunting a riot of floral patterns. One quaint frock of taffeta, with a bold plaid design in two shades of brown and yellow was buttoned in front to the Peter Pan collar, while its skirt was edged at the foot with a stiff cartridge-pleating of the taffeta. A lovely gown of Havana brown starched lace was girdled at the waistline with a double sash and ends of chartreuse green and flame crepe.

LANSEA AND GOLFLEX

For the informal bridge and afternoon tea, the navy taffeta two and three-piece suits, would bring joy to the woman of slender purse, and for sports wear the Lansea knitted suits are ideal. The tomato, cream and other gay colors modeled to-day would look most effective against a background of green golf course or tennis court.

The Golflex styles are smarter than ever. One of the most attractive suits shown from this house was of the new Jonella cloth in French turquoise blue, while another three-piece suit of concord blue boasted a narrow scarlet leather belt and transparent buttons on the frock, and a jaunty hip coat.

A group of very smart and dressy coats was also shown, including a Del Monte-Hickey in fancy beige weave with a cape collar, also several new designs for sport and street wear.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

SPRING PUTS YOU IN A FAIR WAY TO GET ON THE GREENS

By MARY E. DAGUE

Raw greens and other raw vegetables—carrots, turnips, cauliflower, even peas—are the favorite hors d'oeuvres of the moment.

At every tea or cocktail party you go to these days, there is sure to be a colorful tray of crunchy vitaminish vegetables and a good thing, too. Even children are being taught to eat a carrot with as much relish as they would a stick of candy.

We housewives really ought to be conscientious about putting greens, both raw and cooked, on our spring menus. Think of all the iron, sulphur, phosphorus and what have you considered so essential to bodily growth contained in a fine mess of mustard greens, or a crisp chef's salad (so-called because the most famous chefs make that kind for themselves) of chicory, escarole, endive, lettuce and romaine.

USE LITTLE WATER

Just wash spinach, young chard and beet greens and cook them with the drops of water clinging to the leaves—no extra. Coarser greens like dandelion, kale, chicory and escarole need a little boiling water.

Chicory and escarole should be cooked young if at all and when they are pale green in color. The leaves become yellowish on maturity and are more palatable eaten raw with a good tart salad dressing.

Beet greens are specially good to serve with ham. Boil the end of a ham with the greens, any kind from dandelion to spinach. What could be better for spring dinner than ham and eggs and beet greens? And maybe old-fashioned strawberry shortcake to eat with them.

BAKED ESCAROLE

One bunch or two pounds escarole, 4 tablespoons fat or butter, 1 bouillon cube, ½ cup boiling water, salt and pepper.

Blanch escarole by plunging into boiling water for five minutes. This removes excess bitterness. Drain and put into a buttered baking dish. Dissolve bouillon cube in boiling water, add fat or butter and salt and pepper and pour over escarole. The amount of salt depends on the kind of fat you use. With bacon fat less salt will be necessary than if an unsalted fat is used. Cover baking dish and bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) about forty minutes, until tender. Serve from baking dish.

TO-MORROWS MENU

Breakfast: Prune and lemon juice, cereal, cream, bread crumb omelet, graham and raisin muffins, milk, coffee.

SALE OF BLIND WORK STARTS

Articles on View in Spencer's; Braille System to Be Shown

An Easter sale of articles made by blind workers of Victoria and vicinity will be held this week, starting today.

Through the kindness of David Spencer Limited this special sale will be held in the boys' department section of their store on Government Street, a convenient location for the public interested in the work accomplished by fingers trained to work in darkness. This work represents infinite patience on the part of pupil and teacher.

There will be many new dainty novelties in the work collection offered for sale.

Easter flower baskets, egg baskets, shopping baskets, baskets large and small. Novelties in leather work, grass work, bead work, the new metal belts and bracelets, footstools, children's chairs, rubber doormats and a wide variety of articles that show the care, patience and pluck of those who work by the sense of touch.

Special appliances used in teaching the blind will be shown. Appliances that help trained finger-tips to do the work of eyes. The Braille writing frame or slate, a wooden board, ingeniously contrived to hold the thick paper used—a hinged brass ruler, and the awl-like stiletto for punching the raised dots that are easily perceptible to the touch.

Reading by touch is in the usual way from left to right; but the blind student has to write Braille from right to left. Is that easy? It is not.

The majority of duties are not easy for the blind, but the spirit, that bravely tackles obstacles, "nor bates a jot of heart nor hope, but still bears up and steers right onward," is as keen and strong in the blind workers of to-day, as when the great blind poet Milton wrote them.

Ganges

Ganges, April 16. — The monthly meeting of the Salt Spring Island branch of the Women's Auxiliary was held last Friday afternoon at Ganges House. The president, Mrs. H. Moorhouse, was in the chair. The financial report showed a balance in hand of $33.17. A discussion took place re apportionment for the D.M.P. It was felt that a special effort should be made to raise funds to meet this, and it was decided to have a home cooking sale and tea, with an accompanying musical and variety programme, with Mrs. C. S. Holmes as general convener, on May 7. The secretary was instructed to write to the Church Embroidery Guild in Victoria and obtain price and material for frontal and superfrontal for St. Mark's Church. The date for the annual garden fete and sale of work was decided for July 23, at the vicarage, Central Salt Spring. Members of St. Mary's Church Guild will be asked to join forces.

The daffodil tea and sale, organized by the members of the Guild of Sunshine, held last Thursday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. G. J. Mouat, Rainbow Road, proved a most successful affair.

South Salt Spring Island Women's Institute met on Tuesday last in the Institute Hall, Fulford, for an open meeting and demonstration of spinning on a home-made spinning wheel by Miss B. Hamilton.

A pleasant time was spent at Formby House, Ganges, last Thursday, when at the invitation of Mrs. A. K. Ozenham, the parents of pupils witnessed the annual exhibition of physical drill and gymnastic exercises.

The Way Beyond

By JEFFERY FARNOL

"It don't seem nat'ral," she murmured, "no, it don't . . . as you or any man should carry ought for the likes o' me."

In a pleasant glade where a small, lumpy horse grazed hard by a trim caravan and little tent sat a man upon a three-legged cricket, weaving a basket with quick, skilled fingers; he was a tallish man, rosily meek and diffident as his hay-like whiskers that drooped, as it were, in abject humility as, beholding Richard, he rose to pull off weather-beaten hat, blinking mild, blue eyes almost apprehensively beneath Richard's stern gaze and bowing in instant deference, enquired in tone meek as his whiskers:

"What may I do for you, sir, if you please?"

"Not for me," answered Richard, setting down the bucket so suddenly that it slopped, "Not for me but your wife."

"Certainly, sir, if you'll allow me to ask—what?"

"Fight for her."

"Eh? Fight sir? Lord . . . you don't mean . . . with you, sir?"

"No no!" said Richard, flushing. "I mean with this Smiling Smith or any other blackguard that molests her. Look at her eye!"

"Yes, sir, yes I'm a-looking. Black it is, to be sure, and going blacker."

"Well, aren't you ashamed?"

"No, thank you, sir, I'm only humbly grateful."

"Grateful? What the devil for?"

"That it ain't any worse, sir." Here from the caravan issued a lusty wailing, whereat the woman incontinent vanished.

"Ha! Then you have a child?" demanded Richard.

"Which I can't deny, sir, axing your pardon . . . a gell, sir, if you please, and pretty as a picture, golden curls and her mother's black eyes—I mean—"

"Black eyes?" snorted Richard. "Why let any rogue black your wife's eyes? Don't you love her?"

"Oh, from the bottom o' my beating heart, sir."

"Then why not fight to protect her—and your child?"

"Because, sir, I ain't that kind o' man, being drove by a hard fate out o' my proper spear, sif, you behold in me an anemone—"

"A what?"

"Sir . . . I ain't this nor that nor yet what I seem. I was born and bred gentle, if you please, and should be with gentle folks, 'stead o' mingling it with rough on the road. So being born so very gentle I can't fight, it ain't in me—when things goes perverse, I swallers the pill, I bolts the lick, eats humble pie and kisses the rod perpetual."

"And suppose this Smiler comes back and orders you off?"

"I shall pack up and go sir—prompt."

"And how if he should strike your wife again?"

"Then, sir, I expect as she'll strike him back."

"By heaven! You're a poor sort of animal, I think."

"Yes, sir!" sighed the man Jacob, whiskers more meekly despondent than ever. "But then we're all animals, ain't we, sir?"

"Not such cowardly, contemptible animals to shield our own flesh behind a woman's devotion."

"Cowardly?" repeated Jacob, raising his large, mild eyes to Richard's scowling face, "Humbly asking your pardon but—I ain't a coward exactly. I ain't afraid o' being hurt, sir, it's only that I nat'rally sings small and eats humble pie by instinct. Besides my Becky's always done the battling, sir—she's fierce enough, for the two of us, and me being a gentle creature—"

"Most creatures will fight to defend their mates and young, and a man that won't is just a . . . a thing!" said Richard with a look of such bitter scorn that his hearer's mild eyes opened very wide and his good-natured mouth gaped between whiskers that drooped now in very uttermost dejection.

"A . . . thing:" he murmured "Me?"

"A demned thing to permit your wife and child to be misused! Won't you fight for your helpless baby?"

At this question the man Jacob glanced towards the caravan and slowly his round eyes closed to gleaming slits, then his mouth shut with a snap so violent that his hay-like whiskers quivered and thereafter almost bristled . . . And then, before he might answer, was a sound of wheels upon the unseen road, with mutter of voices lost in sudden, bull-like roar:

"Oho, Mus' Richard! Wheer be ee away to, Mus' Dick?"

"Only a friend of mine," snawered Richard, then called in answer: "Here, Tom! This way!"

Plodding hoof-strokes, creak of wheels and into this peaceful seclusion strode Tom bearing a quart bottle and closely followed by a squat, hairy, fierce-eyed man in fur cap and velveteen smalls, a tall, hook-nosed woman and a buck-toothed hobbledehoy leading a horse and cart.

"Ale, sir!" quoth Tom, proffering the large bottle. "And drink hearty—"

"What, Jacob," cried the hairy fellow, his bearded visage split by an ugly grin, "ain't you away yet? Pack off now—you an' y'r wort an' brat afore I kicks ye off—get a'goin'—"

"She ain't a brat, Mr. Smith—"

"Don't gimme no back-talk, you Jacob!" roared the Smiler. "Clear out afore I sets your tent afire!"

"Lord!" exclaimed Tom, clutching the ale to his bosom, "Wots all this 'ere, Mus' Dick?"

"Be quiet and let's see," answered Richard, seating himself on the stool while Tom very carefully set the ale behind an adjacent tree out of harm's way.

"Are ye a'going?" bellowed the Smiler.

"Well, no we ain't," answered Jacob, meekly. "And please don't go calling my wedded wife a wort—"

"Oh, set about 'im, Smiler!" cried the hook nosed woman.

"Ar, knock 'is heye out, Governor!" growled the toothy hobbledehoy; and then forth of the caravan stepped the wife and mother, her golden haired baby clasped to her bosom.

"Take the child, Jacob!" said she, frowning valiantly on their agressors.

"No!" he answered, softly. "No my dear. Keep away."

"But . . . Jacob . . ."

"So, you ain't agoin' . . . hey!" demanded the Smiler slowly advancing.

"Well . . . no!" answered Jacob, blinking his mild eyes. "No, we ain't."

"Oh?" quoth the Smiler, somewhat non-plussed by this unexpected reply. "Oho, and why not?"

"Well, answered Jacob, fumbling meek whikker, "I . . . p'rpos yonder gentleman will explain?"

"Not, I!" answered Richard, folding his arms. "Fight your own battles." Scarcely had he spoken than the smiler leapt, smote poor Jacob headlong, kicked out pegs and guy ropes and down fell the little tent in a forlorn heap.

For a moment or so Jacob lay where he had fallen, wiping the blood from his face and looking at it with strange, impersonal curiosity; then, and with effortless ease, he was afoot and stood a breathing space, glancing from his wife and child to the grinning Smiler, and lo—his whiskers, no longer meek, bristled with a new ferocity, his blue eyes glared and like Saxon baresearker he leapt at his assailant who, gurgling amazement, gave back, took a flush blow on his smiling mouth, another in the eye and went down all of a heap while Jacob, fierce now as any tiger rushed upon the toothy fellow, was staggered by a vicious upper-cut, gasped, steadied himself, shook his head and bored in again with powerful drives and swings. But now the Smiler was afoot again and snatching a heavy faggot from the fire, made to smite this astounding Jacob to earth; but thither sprang Richard, arm up flung to ward this coward's blow and was smitten bleeding to his knees, whereat Jacob's wife screamed, the baby wailed and Tom came, roaring.

"Away, Tom!" cried Richard, rising nimbly, "keep out of it . . . he's mine!" and, evading the heavy swing of that murderous faggot, Richard drove left fist to the Smiler's middle and as the shaggy head jerked forward, whirled up powerful right to hairy chin whereat down went the Smiler again and lay, his eyes staring glassily and taunting grin quite gone. Then turning Richard beheld this baresark Jacob, bloody but triumphant, scowling down at his second prostrate antagonist through a very malignity of ferocious-bristling whisker.

"Get up and go!" cried he, spurning the toothy fellow with his boot toe. "Up and take Smiler with you or I'll . . . I'll trounce the inwards out o' you. Get off!"

Slowly and painfully the toothy hobbledehoy arose and, with the hook nosed woman's assistance, hoisted the dazed Smiler to his legs and into the rickety cart and so turned to betake themselves other where.

"And lookee," cried the new Jacob, "don't ever come troubling us any more or next time I may be the death o' ye . . . Blood! Wounds! Fire and fury—that's me!"

Then seeing where his comely wife stood, babe at breast, watching him in a wide-eyed amazement akin to adoration, Jacob ran and clasped her in his long arms, baby and all.

"Never again, Becky!" cried he. "No man shall ever hurt thee again. And . . . I've got a black eye too, lass!"

"Oh, Jacob . . . Jacob dearie, you was so wonderful! But the pore young man . . . see, his face so bloody . . . take the baby Jacob."

"Ladies first, Tom lad."

"Ah, but no, sir, I couldn't—not till you've drunk—you as 'ave worked such a merricle wi' my Jacob."

So Richard quenched his thirst, drinking joyously as thereafter did they all.

"Lookee, good friends and Becky, my dear," cried Jacob cheerily, "I've got a black eye too and likewise a cut lip and glad of it for your sake, my girl. I'm the one to fight from now on, Beck."

Uncle Wiggily And Hippity's Run

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Uncle Wiggily's little rabbit boys and girls, Baby Bunty, the orphan, Nurse Jane and Mrs. Longears were very glad that Hippity, the cousin rabbit from the desert land where it never rains, was visiting in the hollow stump bungalow.

"He does such funny things," said Nurse Jane.

"He surely does," said Mrs. Longears. "At the breakfast table this morning I found him putting his carrot coffee into the maple sugar bowl instead of putting the sugar in his coffee."

"That must have been funny," said Uncle Wiggily. They could talk about Cousin Hippity now as he was up in the bath room cleaning his teeth. "And I suppose," went on Uncle Wiggily, "if I went up there I'd see him using his toothbrush to polish his shoes. He surely does things backward."

"Like when he held the umbrella upside down in the rain yesterday. Oh, that was funny," said Nurse Jane, "to see him hopping along through the drops and the upside down umbrella filling with water over his head like a wash tub! Ha! Ha! Ha!"

They had to stop laughing and talking about Cousin Hippity, for he was heard coming down stairs. But as soon as Uncle Wiggily, his wife and Nurse Jane saw the visiting rabbit they had to laugh again.

He was coming down stairs backward, stepping on his ears instead of his hind legs.

"Do you always come down stairs that way, Hippity?" asked Uncle Wiggily of his visiting cousin rabbit.

"Only on Tuesdays," said Mr. Hippity. "But where are the children rabbits?" he asked. "They were here when I went upstairs to brush my teeth. Where are they?"

"They have gone to school," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Why doesn't the school come to the children instead of the children going to school?" asked the cousin rabbit. "I think that would be much nicer. Then the children would never be late."

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Nurse Jane and Mrs. Longears. "Wouldn't it be funny to see the school come to the children?"

"It couldn't be done," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, yes, it could," said Cousin Hippity. "Just put the school on roller skates and it could glide from house to house picking up all the children. I think I'll go see the Lady Mouse Teacher and ask her to put roller skates on her school."

"You can ask her if you like," said Mr. Longears, and he laughed so hard that the twinkle nearly dropped off his pink nose. "Anyhow, you and I can go out and look for an adventure."

FIND ADVENTURE

So Uncle Wiggily and his cousin went over the fields and through the woods, up hill and down hill, looking for an adventure before they went to see about putting the school on roller skates.

"What?" asked his cousin.

"An adventure," said Mr. Longears. "It's a bad adventure, too. For it's the Bob Cat! Come on! Run! Run fast!" Uncle Wiggily started to run away from the Bob Cat. But Cousin Hippity, who liked to do things backward, ran straight toward the Bob Cat.

"Not that way! Not that way!" called Uncle Wiggily, looking back. "Run with me, Hippity!" But Hippity ran faster straight for the Bob Cat. And the Bob Cat, seeing a rabbit running at him, stopped and said:

"This is funny! Uncle Wiggily runs away from me but this new rabbit runs right at me. There must be some trick here. Maybe this new rabbit is really the Police Dog. I guess I'd better run away myself."

So that's just what the Bob Cat did. And if the piano will let the radio have a key to open the front door, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily playing ball.

COMEDIENNE

She is pretty enough to be any play's heroine, but comedy is Jean Sothern's forte. In that capacity she is heard on dozens of sustaining and commercial programmes over the Columbia network each month. Veteran moviegoers will recall Jean as one of the leading child actresses in the days when pictures were being made in Fort Lee, N.J., and she was likewise a vaudeville headliner before she came of age.

Square Tomato Is Experiment

New Zealand Visitor Learns That It Fits Sandwiches Better

The immediate ancestors of many a dish of peas that will be eaten in Canada this summer, according to George Cooper of Wellington, New Zealand, came from the Antipodes.

Mr. and Mrs. Cooper are guests at the Empress Hotel, before making an extended tour of the Dominion and the United States. Practically retired from active business now, Mr. Cooper for many years was in the seed business—growing, exporting. He is still interested in it. His specialty is peas. Five thousand acres of his and his firm's holdings is devoted to the growth of peas. The seed is shipped all over the world. He also exports flower seed of most varieties. The business is handled very much as it is in this country.

Told that Claus MacTavish, a famous pea grower of Saanich, was now experimenting with a square tomato, he laughed his disbelief. "Anyway, why a square tomato?" he asked. "It fits better in sandwiches," he was told. "There might be something in that," he admitted. "I'll come back and have a look at it."

Mr. and Mrs. Cooper intend to return to British Columbia later in the season, when Mr. Cooper hopes to view certain seed-growing areas here.

BUSH FIRES AT PORT ALBERNI

Port Alberni, April 16.—A number of residences on Redford Heights were threatened with destruction when bush fires raged through the woods at the week-end. The local fire department, assisted by volunteers, had a hard fight before bringing the flames under control.

ACID IS YOUR ENEMY

. . . . Get rid of it before IT CAN HARM YOU!

INDIFFERENCE to over-acidity of the stomach can only lead to trouble and suffering. Do not neglect such symptoms as frequent heartburn, acid eructations, gas, "sour" stomach, acid indigestion, etc., for these signify that too much acid is present in the stomach. For immediate relief take Bisurated Magnesia. This preparation, though harmless to either child or adult, neutralizes and absorbs the excess acid.

Garage Men To Meet Wednesday

Earl McMorran, of Provincial Association, Will Speak to Local Gathering

Hall, Broad Street, at 8 o'clock. It will be addressed by Earl McMorran, business manager of the association.

Mr. McMorran arrived in the city this morning. He stated the association aimed to show local operators the benefits to be derived from membership in the organization, with a view to establishing a branch body here.

Operators from Duncan, Cobble Hill, Langford, Saanich, Oak Bay, Victoria and Esquimalt will be invited to attend.

Mr. McMorran has distributed a number of copies of The Garage and Service Station News, the official publication of the association, which contains a copy of a proposed act which the garage men are seeking to control gasoline petroleum in their own and the public interests.

Gray Hair

Best Remedy is Made At Home

The old new make of home is today many times more popular than ever, can be by following this simple recipe: To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Allen Compound and one-fourth ounce of Glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it yourself at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained.

Grey hairs color to attractive faded or gray hair, making it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

CHIEF PRAISES WORK OF SCOUTS

Lord Baden-Powell Congratulates Officials on Big Rally Here

Executives, scouters and Scouts of Vancouver Island who took part in the big rally on Saturday at the Willows Exhibition grounds were congratulated on their splendid appearance in a letter received from Lord Baden-Powell by Major James Wise, district commissioner.

The letter follows:

"In bidding goodbye, most reluctantly, to Vancouver Island, I must tell you how delighted I am with the standard to which you and the scouters and executives have brought scouting in the island.

"The rally was a genuine pleasure to me. The boys were well turned out, looking smart and happy, and their different displays were jolly well done. I would congratulate your staff and the rovers on their good arrangements, made in co-operation with the girl guides, which caused the whole show to work successfully.

"I am sure that it must have impressed the public very favorably. The public, on their part, coming in such large numbers and showing such a close interest in all that went on must have given great encouragement to both scouters and scouts.

I only hope that a number of young men will now feel the call to spend some of their spare time in doing a service to Canada by joining us as scoutmasters. By doing so they will enable us to take in hand a bigger percentage of the rising generation—a point of national importance in these difficult times of unrest; while for their own part they will realize something of the big satisfaction that comes of devoting a bit of one's time to doing that which is worth while instead of frittering it away in mere play.

"For this reason, though games are good and healthful, scouting is the best game of all, both for men who lead and for the boys who follow their lead.

"My cordial congratulations to you and with most sincere good wishes for your further successes."

Dickens's Works Well Presented

Members of Local Club Hear Clever Presentations From Famous Pen

A varied programme, which included some excellent presentations of Dickens's works was enjoyed by members of the local Dickens Club yesterday evening. The members also discussed plays by the famous writer which had been recently produced on the screen here, including "David Copperfield" and "Great Expectations."

One of the features of the evening was the reading by Captain Wilfred Ord, local elocutionist, of Sam Weller's visit to the Marquis of Granby Inn at Dorking, where he first encountered his mother-in-law. Captain Ord gave the reading in full costume, with clerical wig, cap and gown.

A delightful surprise was occasioned by the visit of T. Goodland, a member of the London society, who referred to the world-wide interest taken in the activities centring around Charles Dickens. He was in Milan, Italy, during the centenary celebrations in England of the Pickwickians' ride to Rochester, and a complete account of the celebration had appeared in the Milan paper, he said.

A. W. Arnup gave an excellent presentation of the address by Sergeant Buzfuzz to the jury in the case of Pickwick vs. Bardell. Miss E. Pearson contributed the recitation "Bob Sawyer's Party," from Pickwick Papers.

A review of an article in the English magazine, John Bull, dealing with the proposed removal of Charles Dickens's remains from Westminster Abbey to Rochester, was presented by Mrs. H. L. Pensham, who said the matter had been settled with the decision to leave the tomb untouched.

William Marchant, former mayor of the city, was introduced as a new member of the local society.

The members discussed plans for a picnic on June 22, to be held at the Experimental Farm, Saanichton. Other announcements included the filming of "The Old Curiosity Shop" in England, which would be released in time to be shown here before the end of this year.

LIQUOR STORE ROBBERY FAILS

Port Alberni, April 16.—A determined effort to break into the government liquor store here was made about 5 o'clock Sunday morning. Marks on the rear window and warehouse door showed that the culprits first attempted to force the storage room. This failing, they next attempted to force the front door. The screws had been removed from the door plate and the solid brass plate had been bent, evidently with some heavy iron instrument. When this held, however, an attempt was made to force entry by breaking a large plate glass window.

The sound of breaking glass aroused the employees of a bakeshop across the road and they rushed out, to see a man running up the street.

The police were later notified, and from a description given by the employees a suspect was arrested.

Clip out this feature, attach the stamp described, if you have it or can get it, and paste up in scrapbook form.

Stories in STAMPS By I. S. Klein

TRADITION as old as earliest Biblical history permeates the famous Mosque of Omar in Palestine. More properly called "The Dome of the Rock," this structure was built in 691 A.D. over what is believed to be the rock where Abraham had intended to sacrifice his son, Isaac.

According to Moslem tradition, it is the rock from which Mohammed ascended to Heaven, and Mohammedans point to the imprint of his foot on the rock as proof.

LIBERAL LEADER CORRECTS RECORDS

Canadian Press

Ottawa, April 16.—Liberal Leader Mackenzie King proved a stickler for accuracy in the House of Commons yesterday when he objected to Mr. George Perley moving motions placed on the order paper in the name of "The Prime Minister." He said it should be "Acting Prime Minister."

"My right honorable friend is either Prime Minister or Acting Prime Minister," said Mr. King. "I have no doubt he has been officially appointed Acting Prime Minister, and I think the permanent records of the House should be kept accurate."

Sir George said if it would set Mr. King's mind at rest he had no objection to the suggested change on the order paper.

ALBERTA CUTS LIQUOR PRICES

Calgary, April 16.—For the first time in the history of the Alberta Liquor Control Board, it is possible to purchase a bottle of spirituous liquor under the dollar mark.

The new price list, which went into effect to-day, shows a thirteen-ounce bottle of gin may be bought for 85 cents. The reduction follows duty and tax cuts announced by the Dominion Government in the budget. The reduction in Alberta prices averages about 25 per cent, and range from 30 cents to $2 a bottle, depending on the size of the bottle and brand purchased.

FIRST 100% PURE PARAFFIN-BASE OIL

from Western Crudes!

TRITON has these definite advantages over "Eastern" or "Western" Motor Oils

1. LONGER LIFE
2. REDUCES MOTOR WEAR
3. FORMS LESS CARBON
4. FORMS LESS SLUDGE
5. MORE STABLE IN USE

EVERY TRITON advantage has been proved by over 250,000 miles of stock car road runs, and by months of exhaustive laboratory tests and comparisons.

In one of these tests a car was driven 60,183 miles in 60 days with TRITON motor oil. Its cylinders and pistons were measured before and after the run and the wear found to be less than one-half of normal for that distance!

A "dynamometer" engine, run in a series of 1000 mile tests showed 22% less wear with TRITON than with high-grade "Eastern" oil, and 43% less wear than with high-grade "Western" oil!

Thousands of miles run with popular makes of cars at Ascot Speedway, comparing performance of leading brands of oils, showed that TRITON forms less carbon, less sludge, has longer life, and is more stable in use.

Made by the Propane Solvent Process

TRITON'S amazing qualities are made possible by Union's patented PROPANE solvent process, which removes all undesirable low-grade, low-gravity materials from the finished oil—leaving in TRITON only 100% pure paraffin-base material!

Costs No More

TRITON costs no more than high-grade "Eastern" oils. Sold in sealed tamper-proof cans for your protection at all Union Service Stations and hundreds of Independent dealers throughout Western Canada.

Make Three Months' Test

This is because TRITON tones up your motor, helps to clean out previously collected sludge, permits the rings to function properly and increases general motor efficiency.

Bogota, Colombia, April 16 (Associated Press). — Fifteen persons drowned yesterday when a river boat carrying more than eighty persons capsized in the Rio Magdalena near Barranquilla.

ALLIES COULD ENSURE PEACE

Must Stand Unitedly Together, Says H. Gautier, of Cognac Fame

For two centuries the firm of Gautier Freres of Cognac, southwestern France, has been engaged in the distillation of brandy. Herbert Durrwell Gautier, representing the eighth generation of the famous French family, and present head of the firm, was in Victoria yesterday on a business tour that will take him through Canada, United States and Mexico.

"The French nation believes that the best way to preserve peace in Europe is for the Allies to stand unitedly together," said M. Gautier, when questioned at the Empress Hotel to-day about the Stresa conference. "France wants peace and will never go to war except in self-defence.

"Whatever France is doing militarily she is going because of constant fear of invasion, not because of hate. It is France's hope that her allies will continue to stick by her. If they do that there will be no danger of further conflict in Europe."

M. Gautier and his partners control large vineyards in the region of Cognac, capital of an arrondissement of the department of Charente. The brandy they manufacture is stored in vast underground cellars and is not put on the market until it is between ten and twenty years old.

France, he said, was selling more brandy and more wines to Canada, and the market with the United States had increased tremendously since repeal of prohibition.

Making his first visit to Victoria, M. Gautier says it is one of the most beautiful cities he has had the privilege of visiting in his travels.

During the morning he met William Kennedy, liquor control board commissioner. He took the afternoon boat for the mainland.

Influence of Famous South African Force

Has Been Felt Throughout Empire Says Assistant Commissioner Parsons, Former Trooper in Baden-Powell's constabulary

Recollections of the famous South African constabulary organized by Lord Baden-Powell, and the influence on police work the force has had in all parts of the empire, were recalled by Assistant Commissioner T. W. S. Parsons of the British Columbia Provincial Police during the visit to Victoria of the founder of the force.

As a former trooper in the South African Constabulary, Mr. Parsons was one of several other ex-members of the force who were delighted to meet their former chief during his stay in Victoria.

Mr. Parsons recalled how in 1901 the South African War was halfway through its course. The end, however, was in sight and it had become necessary to look beyond current hostilities and prepare for the future.

"For on one side," said Mr. Parsons, as you know victory must always mean not only hardship but bitterness and a vast unhappiness. And of all wounds I suppose those of the spirit are the most difficult to heal. The thing to do then was to bring home a great political truth as soon as possible to establish that with peace the British Empire held as much for those newly entered into its comity as it did for the rest of us.

DEFINITE IDEAL

"At such a moment you must have two things, first your definite ideal and then (capable of its execution) a man. In this instance the man was Lord Robert Baden-Powell, apostle of a new and now accepted style of police work. The British Columbia Police are among his systemic legatees. He covered those two former Boer republics with leaders after his own heart. Men like Steele from the old N.W.M.P.

"It was discovered there is no better expression of good government than an efficient police force, devoid of parochialism, decently led. . . so that two years after the cessation of hostilities his constabulary could ride through those former war torn areas and everywhere find not sullen and disgruntled enemies, but warm and abiding friends; and remember, this is not hearsay, I speak as one of those who rode.

"Indeed without laboring the point I believe it is not too much to say that ten years afterwards, in 1914 to be precise, the influence of this one man was a deciding factory in inducing our former Africander opponents not only to throw in their lot with us but to serve and die on every front and finally perhaps the greatest thing of all to give us, and the world, that great South African, Jan Christian Smuts.

MONUMENT TO FOUNDER

"From start to finish probably 15,000 men, it may have been more, passed through the South African Constabulary before 1906, when, its task accomplished, there came a change in name but not in policy or spirit.

"It is a rare and extraordinary thing that, in his lifetime, one man should have been so instrumental in shaping the lives and careers of so many of his fellows or to have influenced a national policy—in short to have erected in the hearts of fellow-men a monumeng more lasting than brass or iron. However, so it is, and if one the projector of mercator you can mentally visualize this world of ours rest assured there is no single part of it, irrespective of all color, race or creed, but what houses a representative of the great and noble army of Scouts, or that, at some time or another, it has not been visited by an ex-member of the South African Constabulary.

"Incidentally, no other man has professionally fathered so many commissioners and senior officers of police. Indeed, no matter where you may go in any of the dominions or colonies, or in any mandated territory, you will discover the magnetic influence of this very, very great idealist, Lord Baden-Powell."

IN NEW PICTURE AT THE DOMINION

COHEN STORY AT DOMINION

Gene Raymond and Frances Drake Play Leading Roles in "Transient Lady"

Swift-moving melodrama, delightful romance, sparkling comedy, deft direction and brilliant acting are all found in Universal's new film, "Transient Lady," which opened today at the Dominion Theatre, with Gene Raymond, Henry Hull, Frances Drake and June Clayworth in the featured roles.

The story, by Octavus Roy Cohen, ran serially in Liberty Magazine, and was engrossing and thrilling.

The story centres around a trio of wandering promoters, a young girl, a young man and a middle-aged man, who arrive in the town of Karnak to start a roller-skating rink. The girl is played by Frances Drake, the young man by Clark Williams, a newcomer with a great deal of promise, and the older man by Edward Ellis.

Running the small southern town is Hamp Baxter, played by Henry Hull. Hamp is a crooked politician, and nothing happens without his approval. But on the night of the opening of the skating rink a gang of his relatives, town hoodlums, try a lot of rough stuff on the older member of the wandering trio and one of them is shot and killed. The blame is being fixed on young Williams, and things look very bad for him when Gene Raymond, in the role of the leading young lawyer of the town, comes to the defence of the young man.

Where To Go To-night
As Advertised

Capitol—Jean Parker in "Sequoia."
Columbia—"The President Vanishes," starring Arthur Byron.
Dominion — "Transient Lady," starring Frances Drake.
Playhouse — Janet Gaynor in "Servants' Entrance."
Crystal Garden—Swimming.

COLUMBIA THEATRE

The oddest and most recent of the Hollywood "miracles" is that which brings stardom to an actor already over fifty after he had passed more than thirty years on the stage and two years in Hollywood in pursuit of that elusive honor.

He is Arthur Byron, who plays the title role in the Walter Wagner-Paramount picture "The President Vanishes," now at the Columbia Theatre. And he was chosen for the role because the film public had seen so little of him.

CAPITOL THEATRE

The fabled "Burial Ground of the Elephants," which figures in the "Tarzan" stories of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, may be a myth, but the prototype in real life has been found in the high Sierras.

The company filming "Sequoia," nature romance now showing at the Capitol Theatre, reported finding the place where all the deer in the national park go to shed their antlers each year.

Every twelve months every buck loses its horns and grows new ones. But where the old horns go has been a mystery.

MISSIONARIES DO FINE WORK

Bishop Matthews Says Great Need of Social Service in Heathen Lands

"I do not think the people of this continent have a proper appreciation for the splendid work being done by the missionaries of all churches in the heathen countries of the world," declared Rt. Rev. Paul Matthews, Episcopal Bishop of Princeton, New Jersey, who reached Victoria this morning from the Orient by the ss. President Grant, after a five-months' tour of the world with Mrs. Matthews.

"I do not mean people should particularly appreciate the religious aspect of the work," Bishop Matthews said. "Of course that is of great value. But I refer especially to the social service work being done. There should be great appreciation and encouragement of that. Why, in one Chinese city of 200,000 person which I visited there was only on hospital."

NEED IS GREAT

Bishop Matthews said there is an enormous amount of social service work to be done in all countries of the Far East. The need for education and hospital care is very great, and so far the missionaries have been the leaders in this work. He said they were doing a splendid work along this line, and particularly mentioned the Canadian missionaries of all denominations who are stationed in China and Japan.

"The leaders of the missionary movement in the Orient are far ahead of the leaders of the churches at home, in many cases," the Bishop said.

During his trip Bishop Matthews spent some time in India, and was much impressed by what the British are doing there, although he said the railways in that country are not nearly as good as the railways in China.

"The work done in India is truly monumental," he said. "The buildings in New Delhi are magnificent. Why, they are as fine as the public buildings in Washington. They were built for the future, I should think, however, that after all the years they have been in India the British would have improved the railways."

PHILIPPINE QUESTION

Bishop Matthews was much interested in the Philippine Islands, and spent some days in Manila. He said one authority there told him that when the United States gives the islands their independence they will be abandoning a Christian nation to heathens in close proximity. He said he had never thought of the question in that light before.

Japan fascinated Bishop and Mrs. Matthews, and they were loud in their praise of that country.

"It is no use talking about Japan to people who have never been there," the Bishop said. "My best advice to anyone interested in the Orient is to go and see for yourself."

He laughed at the idea there might be war between the United States and Japan. He said such an idea is farthest from the thoughts of the great masses in that country.

"When you consider what the Japanese have done in the lifetime of many living people, it is no less than a miracle," he stated.

Penalty For Relief Strikers

Eighteen Sent to Jail For Few Days at Nelson

Canadian Press

Nelson, B.C., April 16.—Eighteen relief strikers who had previously pleaded not guilty to a charge of obtaining a ride on a freight train in contravention of the Railway Act, asked for hearing in court yesterday and pleaded guilty. Stipendiary Magistrate John Cartmel sentenced them to ten days in jail, dating from the time of their arrest, April 9, when released they will be given transportation back to Alberta, whence they came.

Eighteen other men pleaded guilty at the time of their arrest and were sentenced to the day they had already spent in jail.

Twenty-eight men still face trial.

The men were arrested when they boarded a freight train about twenty-five miles from here against police orders. They are among those who joined the strike recently called in Department of National Defence camps in British Columbia.

More than 300 have already been recruited and trained under auspices of the Red Cross, its officials said.

B.C. Ahead In Social Advance

State Health Scheme Explained to Civil Service By Welfare Director

Private philanthropy and industry can no longer take care of the health and indigency, thus forcing the government to step in and inaugurate what are now known as social services, it was explained by Dr. H. M. Cassidy, director of social welfare for the province, in an address to provincial civil servants in the K. of C. Hall yesterday evening.

Dr. Cassidy, who discussed in a general way the progress of social services, was introduced by Hon. G M. Weir, Provincial Secretary.

Dr. Cassidy said that in British Columbia to-day, out of a population of over 700,000, there were 120,000 either dependent, defective or delinquent and thus were charges upon the public pocketbook. These included unemployed, mental cases, mothers' and old age pensions and so forth.

Even should economic security be assured to all persons, there would still be need for social services, he said.

Dr. Cassidy spoke of the general movement toward government handling of the services, recent notable developments being in unemployment insurance, extension of old age pensions, and the proposed health insurance.

B.C. was well in line in the advance, he declared.

Dealing specifically with the B.C. state health insurance scheme, he said most civil servants would be covered, as they come below the range of the $200 a month salary limit.

When the full scheme was in operation they would be required to pay 3 per cent of their salary in return for which they would receive a fairly full medical service and would be protected against large medical bills which are now such a burden.

Dr. Cassidy stressed the fact that this contribution from wages was not really a new payment since it would immediately eliminate several charges that were now common expense to all, including the old expenses for occasional drugs.

The civil service expressed great interest in the health scheme and questioned Dr. Cassidy at length.

Navel Oranges Are Coming to An End

Navel oranges increased in price in city stores yesterday, and are growing scarcer as the season comes to an end in California.

The orange market has been raised three times in the golden state, and further advances are predicted as stocks drop lower.

The navel oranges have been running to large sizes this year, and according to advance reports the Valencias are likely to be mainly small sizes.

Seeks To Resume Canada Citizenship

Herschel Roads Harrison, native British Columbian and member of an old-time island family, to-day appeared in court before Judge McIntosh for hearing on his naturalization application to regain his Canadian citizenship.

Mr. Harrison was born at Departure Bay and after being educated enrolled as a student-at-law in 1914. At the end of the war he went to California, where he was admitted to the California Bar. He practiced there until a few years ago, when he returned to British Columbia and decided to resume residence here.

At the recent session of the B.C. Legislature a special act was put through to reinstate Mr. Harrison as a barrister and solicitor in B.C.

Harry Bishop, ex-postmaster, and Charteris C. Pemberton, went on the stand to-day and testified in favor of Mr. Harrison being restored to his Canadian citizenship.

TELLS OF LIFE IN SINGAPORE

Dr. H. L. Hoops Tell Kiwanians Something of Affairs in Malay Peninsula

"I am afraid a good many people have been misled by novelists and the pictures to believe that Singapore is a city of wicked men and naughty but beautiful women. We have a few, but no more than any other city," said Dr. H. L. Hoops, former principal medical officer of the Straits Settlements, when addressing members of the Kiwanis Club at luncheon to-day in the Empress Hotel.

"Singapore is a highly respectable and a very law-abiding community," Dr. Hoops said. "It is quite as safe at night to walk along the streets or down by the docks as it is in Victoria."

Dr. Hoops said Malaya had been and probably would be again a very wealthy country. Sixty per cent of all the world's rubber is produced there. Rubber was the country's chief source of wealth, the second being tin, 60 per cent of the world's tin being produced there, he said.

The heat in Malaya was never very intense, because of the rainfall, the speaker said. Although a white person there needed a change of climate every three or four years, many had been there twenty years and had preserved their health. There was no white laboring class there, Dr. Hoops said. The whites were all in government service.

OFFERS FINE CAREER

The government service, he said, offered a very fine career to one who joined young. There were 2,500,000 Malayans, 2,000,000 Chinese, 500,000 Indians and between 15,000 and 16,000 whites in the country, the speaker said. The present tendency was to let the Malayans govern themselves as far as possible.

In 1930 there was a tremendous slump in the price of rubber, which made itself felt all over the country.

"But I am happy to say, after a most trying three or four years, during which about half of the white men left, never to return, their places having been taken by Asiatics, that Malaya is coming back," Dr. Hoops said.

He referred briefly to the wild animal life and said there were as many tigers to the square mile there as in any part of the world.

T.B. SEAL CAMPAIGN

Entertainment was provided at the luncheon by James Ker, who sang "Sunrise and You" and "One Alone," accompanied at the piano by M. Stevenson.

C. W. Pangman gave the report of the T.B. Seal Campaign committee, which showed that $2,586.55 had been distributed after 10 per cent of the gross receipts had been sent to Ottawa.

Birthday congratulations were extended to Kiwanians A. S. Denny, George Hart and Tommy Ainscough.

H. T. "Tim" Matson was introduced as a new member of the club by Hugh Allan.

BUTTER RISES THREE CENTS

Up Another Two Cents a Pound This Morning; Market Very Firm

Butter prices shot up another two cents a pound this morning. With an advance of one cent a pound on Saturday, the market has risen three cents over the week-end and is still very firm.

The spurt in butter prices came as a surprise to most wholesalers who expected the customary drop at this time of the year. However, the recent cold weather in the mid-west has held up production on the prairies, and the large shipments to the east during the beginning of the year have caused a temporary shortage in the west.

How long this shortage will last and whether prices will rise still further is a matter of conjecture, but wholesalers agree that butter is extremely short and the market is very firm.

Wholesale prices to-day are quoted as follows: Grade 1 carton, 29 cents a pound; grade 1 prints, 28 cents; grade 2 prints, 27 cents.

RAY KERSEY BADLY HURT

Dislocation Chips Pelvic Bone of Popular Track and Basketball Athlete

Still in considerable pain, Ray Kersey, popular local track and field athlete and member of the Lake Hill basketball team who was injured in yesterday evening's preliminary game at the Willows, was in St. Joseph's Hospital to-day, his legs held in a plaster cast at the hip.

While actual details of his injuries could not be ascertained at a late hour to-day, it was understood he had dislocated his hip following a jump in the game. The thigh bone, going out of joint, was believed to have chipped the edge off the pelvic bone.

He may have to remain in bed for the next two months.

Kersey sustained his injury on a hip believed to have been weakened two weeks ago in a Saanich league game.

He was rushed to the hospital following the accident.

BODY FOUND IN THOMPSON RIVER

The body of a man between fifty and sixty years of age, five feet eight, weight 185 pounds, was taken from the Thompson River, five miles west of Kamloops, last night, according to provincial police radio reports. Personal effects found on the remains included a pair of horn-rimmed glasses and a knife with a Knights of Columbus emblem on it, with the figures 320, probably the lodge number. A slip of paper was also found with the pencilled words "Luckek" or "Luckik Strike."

The body was dressed in khaki shirt, blue grey sweater, trousers and waistcoat, blue with thread stripe half inch apart, with a double-breasted heavy navy blue coat, and black shoes, size 7½.

Post-morten examination disclosed the man had been suffering from lung trouble. The body had been in the water for months and there were no marks of violence.

Authorities believe the remains floated from the North Thompson River and are endeavoring to identify them.

PLAN CAMPAIGN FOR INSURANCE

"Save and Be Safe With Insurance" Motto For National Drive in May

Toronto, April 16.—"Save and be safe with Life Insurance" will be the keynote of this year's life insurance week educational campaign which life companies and life underwriters will conduct on a nation-wide scale from May 13 to May 18.

With over 3,500,000 policy holders in Canada and over $6,000,000,000 of life insurance in force, the campaign will emphasize particularly the co-operative character of life insurance as an institution. Extensive publicity will be employed to emphasize the value of thrift and the merits of life insurance in ensuring financial independence and providing for old age, protecting dependents, and building up assets. Advisory and working committees in charge of this year's activities are meeting with marked success and preparations are well advanced. Newspaper, window display, posters and other publicity forces will be used to ensure success of the week. George H. Hunt, superintendent of agencies, Imperial Life Assurance Co., is chairman of the advisory committee and E. Morton, advertising manager of the North American Life Assurance Co., is chairman of the working committee.

OBJECT TO BOY SCOUTS

Residents of Locality Near Headquarters Send Protest to City Council

Objection to the noise and inconvenience caused by the use of the Johnson Street headquarters of the Boy Scouts was voiced to-day in a petition signed by twenty-six residents of that locality and filed with the city clerk.

The petitioners, taxpayers and property owners on Vancouver, Johnson, and Cook Streets and Pandora Avenue, state that at various times of the day and night "bedlam is let loose and the entire block is in an uproar." The boys shout, beat drums, ride bicycles on the sidewalks, blow bugles and make other noises to the inconvenience of the residents, the petition states.

"Repeated complaints to the police and Boy Scout leaders brought promises, but no results," the petition continues.

"Your petitioners claim that the Boy Scouts should never have been located here, that such location is a direct menace to property values and is a retarding influence to the upkeep of this district," it states.

Concluding the petition asks refusal of the use of the building for Boy Scout activities, along with those of Sea Scouts, Boy Cubs, Cadet Scouts and similar organizations.

The petitioners ask "a complete stoppage of this intolerable nuisance."

FINE POSTERS NOW ON VIEW

Winners of School Musical Festival Competition Named Thursday

Musical Festival posters painted and lettered by pupils of Victoria public, private and high schools have reached a new peak of excellence, according to Arthur Checkley, judge of the work for which prizes will be given.

The posters are now in the city school board office, lending a fine color to the room which has not enjoyed such excellent decoration in many a year.

Not in the nine years' history of the competition has a judge been given so difficult a task as Mr. Checkley has this year in determining winners in the various sections.

On Thursday afternoon they will be shown in public at the Chamber of Commerce auditorium. Mr. Checkley will then make known the winners of different prizes presented for the contests.

IDEAL BOTANY CLIMATE HERE

Dr. H. T. Gussow's Aim Is to Establish National Botanical Gardens in Canada

Dr. H. T. Gussow, Dominion botanist, who is in Victoria to-day from Ottawa, has had in mind, during the twenty-five years he has been in the country, the establishment of a national botanical garden in Canada, and he proposes to devote the next ten years in bringing this about.

"A botanical garden," said Dr. Gussow in an interview to-day at the Empress Hotel, "is not an amusement park, nor is it a horticultural establishment, but it is a centre where botanical research may be carried on for the benefit of the people."

He spoke of the famous Kew Gardens in London, which 2,000,000 people visit every year, and the fame of which is world-wide.

PERFECT CLIMATE

"Just imagine what it would mean to have such a botanical garden in British Columbia, even from the aspect of the tourist trade alone." "And," said Dr. Gussow with significant emphasis," you have the climatic conditions in this province where such a botanical garden could be developed to perfection."

Dr. Gussow explained it was his mission to tell of the aims, purposes and services that a botanical garden could render to a country. He had been impelled by this idea ever since he came to Canada from England a quarter of a century ago.

The study of diseases affecting crops to meet the immediate needs of the country had been specialized work. "We have organized a service," Dr. Gussow said," which has established a world-wide reputation for itself, and we now have a chain of laboratories extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific, the most western one being at Saanichton. These plant pathological laboratories are located at Ottawa, the central laboratory; Charlottetown, Fredericton, Kentville, St. Anne, Que.; St. Catherines, Winnipeg, Edmonton, Summerland and Saanichton."

"But plant pathology is simply one phase of botanical science," said Dr. Gussow. "I want to devote the last ten years of my government service to the completion of the organization of useful botanical service in the country, and by creating an interest in botanical gardens and other important phases of botany. My aim is to link up Canada, botanically speaking, with the rest of the Empire."

UTILITARIAN SIDE

Speaking of the utilitarian side of botany, Dr. Gussow told of research work in quinine by the Bengal government in India, at a cost of £40,000, as far back as 1860, to combat the dreaded disease malaria.

Subsequently Kew Gardens developed the cultivation of quinine bark throughout the tropical possessions of the empire. The result to-day, the botanist said, was that quinine was easily procurable throughout the Indian Empire at trifling cost.

"That," he said, "is a definite idea of the utilitarian value of botany."

Dr. Gussow will give an illustrated lecture at the Chamber of Commerce at 8 o'clock to-morrow night on "Roaming through the botanical gardens of the empire." The address will be sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, the Vancouver Island Tourist Trade Development Association and the Victoria Horticultural Society.

Before leaving for the east the Dominion botanist will pay a visit to the plant pathology laboratory at the Experimental Farm at Saanichton.

CHIEF SCOUT AT BANQUET

Lord Baden-Powell to Attend Farewell Event in Vancouver This Evening

Canadian Press

Vancouver, April 16.—Baron and Lady Baden-Powell, Chief Scout and Chief Guide, will be guests of scouts and guides at a banquet this evening, when they will bid farewell to Vancouver troop leaders before entraining for the east. Lord Baden-Powell will be the principal speaker.

The party will leave to-night for Kamloops, where a grand rally of brownies, cubs, guides and scouts has been arranged for Wednesday.

After a three-day stay at Banff, they will continue to Calgary Sunday for another scout and guide rally in that city Monday. It will be attended by about 1,000 scouts and guides from eastern British Columbia.

Similar rallies have been arranged at principal cities across Canada as they make their way eastward.

INQUIRY SHOWS NO NEWS LEAK

Toronto, April 16.—Investigating charges in connection with the Ontario Government's intention to terminate Quebec power contracts, J. M. Godfrey, Ontario securities commissioner, found no "leak" had taken place, according to his report tabled in the Legislature yesterday evening by Attorney-General A. W. Roebuck.

W. H. Price, Conservative, Toronto-Parkdale, had charged a "leak" during his address in the Power Bill debate and demanded an investigation.

"As a general result of the investigation the commission finds there was no information given out by the government or anybody connected with the government," Mr. Godfrey reported. "It is the opinion in financial circles that there was no leak and that the policy of the government was an extremely well kept secret."

HIGHLANDERS ARE REVIEWED

Major.-Gen. E. C. Ashton Inspects First Battalion, Canadian Scottish

With bayonets and claymores flashings, pipes skirling and kilts swing, the First Battalion, the Canadian Scottish Regiment yesterday evening passed in review before Major-General E. C. Ashton, C.M.G., V.D., officer commanding military district No. 11.

Major-General Ashton carried out the annual inspection of the unit in the Bay Street Armories, before a large audience who crowded the balconies above the parade floor.

The battalion, under the command of Lieut.-Colonel J. R. Kingham, went through the usual routine of inspections, marching past in column of companies, advancing in line, and marching past in column of fours.

In the course of the ceremonies the district officer commanding pinned the Colonial Services Long Service Medal on the tunic of Staff Sergeant Eric B. Chalmers, and presented efficiency medals for twelve years' service to Sergeant W. Davidson and Bandsmen J. A. Watson, I. Culross, D. C. Rife, R. A. Leahy and C. Cooper.

Later in the evening Major-General Ashton witnessed drills by the signallers, stretcher-bearers, Lewis gun sections, and the support (Vickers machine gun) company. He also examined pay lists and battalion records, and visited the officers' mess.

Major-General Ashton was accompanied by Colonel C. B. Russell, D.S.O., Major R. O. G. Morton and Captain L. Black. Lieut.-Colonel Kingham was aided by Major H. M. McGiverin, second-in-command of the battalion, and Captain T. O. Thomas, adjutant.

A Company was in command of Major R. D. Travis; B Company, Capt. Ralph Mathews; C Company, Major Stuart Robertson, and D Company, Capt. W. S. Oliver. Signallers were led by Lieut. Alex T. Stewart. Stretcher bearers were in charge of Major John Stewart. Pipers were in charge of Piper-Major S. Wallace. Lieut. James M. Miller led the band. Lieut. R. Halls was in charge of the color party.

Big Shipment Of Foodstuffs

Tons of Fruit and Vegetables Taken Off Ship To-day

Tons of fruit and vegetables were transferred from the holds of the Ss. Corientes to the store rooms on wholesale row, this morning.

The huge shipment of foodstuffs featured the arrival of a carload of Salinas lettuce, which was the first time this vegetable from the farming districts around San Francisco has made its appearance in Victoria this year.

Asparagus and green peas were also taken off the same boat, as was a carload of bananas from Central America and a mixed car of carrots and beets.

Half a carload of medium sized sweet oranges and half a carload of grapefruit were unloaded from the ship. Except for the bananas, all the produce for Victoria on the Ss. Corientes came from California.

Big Waste In Drugs Claimed

People Pay Too Much, E. E. Bakewell Tells C.C.F. Audience

If British Columbians saved the money they now "waste" on drugs and proprietary articles each year, they would have enough to build a new bridge across the Fraser River every year, declared Ernest Bakewell, M.P.P. for MacKenzie, when addressing a meeting in the C.C.F. headquarters, Fort Street, yesterday evening.

Mr. Bakewell followed up the attack he made on "drug racketeering" in the Legislature, by expounding how several popular medicines were made and sold. His argument was that by putting things in pretty packages and advertising them extensively they sold for much more than the original cost.

British Columbians, he said, spent $5 per capita on such articles and of this $4 was waste. On this basis he said enough could be saved to build a bridge each year.

Because of the huge reputations built up by nationally known drugs, druggists could not be honest with themselves or their customers, he charged. They sold well-advertised high-priced goods, when they could sell much cheaper articles, just as beneficial, and make more profit for themselves.

He illustrated the case of a well-known medicine which sold for $1 a pint. This was a by-product of natural oil, he claimed, for which a use had to be found, so it was sold to relieve constipation. As a matter of fact, he said, the same thing could be obtained much cheaper for use in oiling fruit wrappers.

Sulphur, he said, could be imported at one cent a pound in a form fit for human consumption. It was subjected to a cheap sublimating process and sold at 3½ ounces for ten cents.

PROPOSALS FOR HOUSING

Canadian Press

Ottawa, April 16.—The housing committee of the Commons in a report tabled to-day recommended:

1. That a housing authority be established with power to initiate, direct, approve and control projects and policies and to allocate such moneys in the opinion of Parliament may be necessary for the purpose of assisting a programme of urban and rural housing.

2. That the authority be authorized to negotiate agreements with any province, municipality, society, corporation or individual with a view to promoting construction, reconstruction and repair or such dwellings as may be necessary and the extension of financial assistance at such favorable rates of interest, periods of amortisation and other terms as shall encourage housing.

3. That as its first consideration the authority be urged to take action in respect to repairs (rehabilitations), presently needed.

4. That such national housing policy be so framed, with respect to provision for employment, as to endeavor to co-relate and co-ordinate the efforts of provincial, municipal and other public authorities and private agencies in relation thereto.

The evidence disclosed immediate building of not less than 25,000 houses was imperative.

THE SPORTS MIRROR

NEW YORK boxing dukes appear to have pulled another boner of the worst kind. The only thing new in connection with the current heavyweight controversy is that the challengers have slipped back to James J. Braddock. Braddock, hauled out of the pugilistic boneyard as a filler-in in an elimination tournament, became the ranking challenger in the eyes of the New York commission by thumping Art Lasky. Just why that should entitle the Jersey veteran to that distinction is what little Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, and numerous others are trying to find out. And now Madison Square Garden has signed Braddock for a title bout with Champion Max Baer.

Braddock has been beaten more than a score of times since Tommy Loughran made him look like the missing persons bureau in the old Philly Phantom's last defence of the light-heavyweight leadership in the summer of 1929.

Be that as it may, the New York Boxing Commission blocks an attractive engagement by insisting that Schmeling first tackle Braddock before taking another whack at Maxie Baer.

A second edition between Baer and Schmeling will do well financially anywhere, but the next golden ring harvest will come when—and if—the champion engages Joe Louis, the young Detroit negro.

Louis runs far more risk in charging the over-sized Primo Carnera in New York in June than Baer does in giving Schmeling a second chance.

Schmeling is sincere in his belief that he can score against Baer. Otherwise the German would not be accepting the challenger's end this late in his career. Der Moxie is well fixed.

Schmeling's courage is admirable, but most fighters believe they can win, and Baer has a bit too much of everything for the Ferocious Frankfurter.

Writing in his column in The Montreal Star, "Baz" O'Meara, well-known Canadian hockey critic, certainly takes his hat off to Tommy Gorman. His comment in part follows:

"Tommy Gorman must have that certain something. In fact he has it. You can search the records of games dedicated to the history of physical contact sport and find nothing comparable to his feat of leading two different teams to Stanley Cup and world hockey titles in consecutive seasons.

"Five times he has led clubs to victory in Stanley Cup finals. Your observer campaigned in a newspaper way in four of them. When the famed Ottawa team of 1923, injury riddled and outmanned by Vancouver and Edmonton, crossed the continent to beat the western orides for the second time on their own stamping ground in two years it was the Gorman spirit which was the mainspring of their success.

"That was his last triumph with his Ottawa team. They had won in 1920, 1921 and 1923. The Gorman smile faded from the Ottawa hockey scene to beam brightly at New York though this time in the more passive role of business manager, till he took over the club in its third season and brought it to a fighting playoff with Rangers.

"Stepping out of the picture he startled the hockey world when he led Hawks to a championship last year. They called him lucky, credited Gardiner, Conacher, the Hawks' terrific back checking as main factors in their success. They admitted the Gorman leadership a blend of smart bally-hoo, opportune strategic movements designed at deception, along with the enterprise of his winning personality had something to do with it. At the height of triumph he turned his back on a title team to land in Montreal where years of frustration had dogged the well-planned moves to produce a pennant winner."

"Experts smiled in knowing fashion. Here was a team to test his enterprise to the full. Maroons' history had been one of gallant failures. Gorman looked them over, then recommended two very important changes.

"'Give me Connell and Conacher and I will show you the best hockey team in the league. In fact, we may win a cup,' he remarked in his jaunty fashion. The echoing laugh that greeted this statement had hardly died down before Conacher was practically assured for Maroons.

"Negotiations for the Ottawa discard, Alex. Connell, soon brought that veteran back. Fans gasped at his audacity. Not a few remarked that he was screwy, that he was playing his Ottawa preference to the limit. The Conacher move was regarded in dubious fashion. Gorman they said, 'is trying to look after his old friends. It will not be long now.' They reckoned without their host. The Connell deal turned out to be a masterpiece of strategy. Conacher was not the Connie of last year. Injuries and advancing age slowed him a lot, but when the pinch came, when clear headwork was essential, when the checks went down the big fellow rose to the occasion.

"Tommy admits he is lucky, but when he placed credit right where it belongs in great measure in the hands of his team, he said a baffled, 'I am lucky in having the greatest team in hockey with me.' he remarked simply when carriers carted him shoulder high thr ough the lobby.

"No one has ever had better co-operation from his players. Hooley Smith played his greatest hockey in this series. Played with a broken thumb that stabbed him with racking pain at times. He showed such hockey as he has never revealed since his Ottawa days. It was Tommy Gorman who brought him into major league hockey and it was under him he first attained fame as a rookie. Hooley, they said, was temperamental, that he could brook no managerial yoke. Under the persuasive Gorman influence he rose to starring heights, such as few figured the veteran could uncover after ten years of strenuous campaigning in big time rinks."

Doug Peden Leads Scoring Parade In 53 to 23 Decision

Gives Brilliant Exhibition to Score Twenty Points in Western Cage Final

Second Game On To-morrow Night

Led by the dashing Doug Peden who dropped through ten beautiful field goals for twenty points Victoria Blue Ribbons swamped the famed Winnipeg Toilers 53 to 23 in the opening game of the western Canada senior men's basketball championship at the Willows yesterday evening. On the strength of their walkaway victory the tea and coffee representatives are favored to take the best two out of three series in two straight games and enter the Canadian final against either Montreal Notre Dame de Grace or Windsor Assumption College who are now playing off for the eastern title. Second game of the series will be played to-morrow evening.

Toilers were simply outclassed yesterday evening and after gaining an 8 to 2 lead at the seven-and-a-half-minute mark the Ribbons smothered the Manitoba representatives under an avalanche of baskets. The game was not exciting enough to get the fans worked up to anything like the pitch they experienced during the British Columbia play-offs between the Victoria champions and the University of British Columbia. In comparison to the Varsity series yesterday evening's fixture was tame to say the least.

28 to 7 AT INTERVAL

At half-time the Ribbons had built up a 28 to 7 margin and victory for the Ribbons looked pretty certain. The Toilers attempted to put on a rally with the opening of the second half and managed to snare two field baskets to cut the lead but the Ribbons put on the pressure once more and steadily drew ahead.

Halfway through the final period the Victoria team management pulled off Albert Martin and Porky Andrews, regular forwards, and put on Alex. McKeachie and Bill Wallis, who finished the game.

Toilers were unable to overcome the terrific handicap of heighth. The Ribbons had a decided edge in this regard and it was this factor that played such a big part in the local club's victory. Art Chapman secured pretty nearly every centre tip-off and with the Ribbons getting control of the ball time after time baskets came thick and fast. The Winnipegers cut loose with some nice ball handling at times and displayed a system of blocking out which enabled them to get a couple of baskets. The majority of the time, however the Toilers were battling to try and halt the blistering attack of the Victoria outfit.

Ian Woolley, veteran member of the Toilers, led their scoring with seven points, although L. Phillips and Vic Driver were close behind him with six points apiece.

UNCANNY SHOOTING

Second to Peden in the Ribbons' scoring parade was Art Chapman who canned fifteen points. Chapman got a tremendous hand from the fans for his sensational one-handed pots from the corners. They were uncanny and were enough to break the heart of any opponent. Art got six field baskets and dropped through three out of six foul attempts.

The Ribbons had only three personal fouls called against them, Chuck Chapman drawing two and McKenzie one. The Toilers were pulled up ten times and in the second half lost Woolley on personals. The Ribbons made seven out of fifteen gratis throws and the Toilers converted one out of four.

Before the start of play Mayor David Leeming was introduced to the captains of the teams, following which Ian Woolley introduced the members of the Toilers to the fans. Mayor Leeming extended an official welcome to the Winnipeg players on behalf of the city and then threw up the ball to start the game

FIRST HALF

Art Chapman snared the opening tip-off and in the first minute Martin, Peden and Art Chapman had shots at the Toilers' basket. Wallace was pulled up for fouling Chuck Chapman but the big guard failed to make the line throw good. Both teams appeared nervous with the

CAGE CAPERS

Like Dempsey in his last fight, the ex-champions were only shells of their former selves, according to old Winnipeggers who saw the Toilers in action yesterday evening. They gathered at the Manitobans' dressing room door at half-time and talked of the days of Al Silverthorn and his six feet four inches towering around basketball floors.

Whatever the Toilers may lack, they are not wanting in fighting hearts. Vic Driver, with his left leg swathed in cotton wool and adhesive tape, was just one example of that. Lame throughout the game, the smooth working guard turned in a finished exhibition of ball-handling and shooting, although his floor work was slow. The crowd gave him the biggest hand of the evening when he limped off the floor to rest in the second half.

Garry Shadd, Winnipeg's own referee, called the only foul which banished a player. It was the fourth personal on Johnny Woolley, the 'Peg captain. It was a mighty tough call, as it took one of the Toilers' mainstays off the floor.

Chuck Chapman was pulled up for the first foul on the Victoria team. Only three fouls were called on the Ribbons all night, two to Chuck and one to McKeachie. Ten fouls were called on Toilers. It was a remarkably clean game.

Although easy victors on the night's play, the Ribbons enjoyed more than their share of luck on a lot of shots. The hoop seemed magnetized for several of the tosses they made at the basket. Art Chapman in particular had great luck with his one-handers from the corner.

About five minutes elapsed from the start of the game before Peden found the hoop for the first basket, and the Toilers came back from the tip-off to equalize. After that the boys at the blackboards were busy chalking up new figures until the game ended. The speed and ease with which the Ribbons dropped through shots after the first five minutes left the spectators wondering how they missed so many as the game opened.

Bill Wallis, Ribbon substitute, scored a counter on the first pass he received a few seconds after he entered the game.

The Ribbons shooting was enough to break any opposing team's heart. One hand side-court shots, head-on baskets, twisters from under the cage and pat-in rebounds slipped through the twine in a way that must have made the Toilers weep.

Both teams had difficulty with their passing. The Ribbons explained the trouble. Used to the walls in the High School gym they were unable to judge the long heaves as well as they should, while bounce passes skidded instead of bouncing on the Willows floor.

The game proved conclusively the Toilers have not yet an answer to the question of superior height. The way Doug Peden, Art Chapman, Chuck Chapman and Red Martin stretched to monopolize rebounds showed that.

A clean shot that drops through without hitting the ring may be the prettiest type of basket, but the kind that rolls round and round the iron circle before it drops through still get the fans on their toes. Woolley pulled the crowd out of the benches with one of them yesterday evening.

The fans gave Mayor Leeming a great hand when, while introducing the teams, he expressed the hope the next western Canada finals here would be played in a big new auditorium. But they went into reverse when the mayor said the only way to get the sports arena was to support the Five year Plan.

Although badly trounced yesterday evening, Toilers to-day were not completely disheartened. Commenting on the game, Bill Lowe, secretary of the club, remarked the fixture was a repetition of the first game against Raymond. In the Alberta town the 'Peg team took a bad beating in their initial encounter. In the deciding game they trailed by thirteen points ten minutes from the end. Then they pulled out to win by a point. With that memory, the Toilers still had some grounds for optimism.

The experts are conning the books to see if Doug Peden set a new record as a scoring guard in western Canada championship play. Doug could not seem to do anything wrong as he ran up his total of twenty, mostly from close in shots that showed surprising gymnastic ability for a boy his size. Chuck Chapman, fellow guard, tried only one pot at the cage. It missed.

While they would still like recognition of their own referee, the crowd was well satisfied with the way Ralph Thomas worked on the game. When Thomas called for silence he got it. Although not a hard game to look after, the encounter was capably handled by the former Victorian now resident in Vancouver.

Willie Speck, Famous English Jockey, Dies As Result Of Injuries

Cheltenham, England, April 16.—Willie Speck, one of England's foremost steeplechase jockeys, died here to-day as a result of injuries received in a fall in the Ledbury Steeplechase last Wednesday.

He received a bad fall when riding the 2 to 1 favorite, Gwelo, and his spine was fractured.

Speck has often competed in the Grand National Steeplechase, and in the last renewal of the great race three weeks ago finished third on Thomond II. The season before last he placed third among winning jockeys with forty-eight victories.

Halifax Nose Out Port Arthur Squad

Take First Game of Allan Cup Hockey Final 3 to 2 After Hard-fought Engagement; Ports Still Figure as Dangerous Threat For National Title

Canadian Press

Halifax, April 16.—There were few pats on the back for Halifax Wolverines to-day although they had scraped up a 3 to 2 win over Port Arthur Bearcats in the first game of the Allan Cup hockey final.

They were told the plucky young western champions would turn the tables on them in the second encounter to-morrow night unless they stirred up some of the fighting spirit that routed Montreal Royals in the semi-finals.

All the Bearcat snipers except Bill Thompson were hitting the boards yesterday evening and their nineteen-year-old goalie was nervous in the first period, but as it was they might easily have claimed a victory if it had not been for the reliable "Daddy" Bubar in the Halifax nets and veteran Vince Ferguson.

The Wolves bore scars of their long tussle with Montreal Royals. Captain Ernie Mosher's injured knee kept him out of the game. Frankie Lavigne covered a torn ear with a borrowed helmet. His mate, Graham, came to the game from a hospital bed, where he had spent the week-end to recover from a heavy cold.

GAIN EARLY LEAD

The "Old Wolves," facing the aggressive "Cub Cats," struck early in the fray, piling up three goals in the first period and matching experience with speed to hold the advantage.

Lanky Vince Ferguson, veteran warrior, who has been with the Halifax pack since it was organized in 1926, drew first blood for the Wolverines and beat Jackie Nash again to regain the lead after Bill Thompson had tied the count.

The brilliant Thompson, who caught Bubar unawares with a long wing shot in the first period, gave Bearcats their other marker early in the second, on a clever pass from Alex Sinclair.

Averaging only twenty-three years of age, the "home brew" western champions had 5,000 fans cheering for them as they battled old hands collecting from all over the country. The first-string snipers — Friday, Sinclair and Thompson— made the stout Halifax defence look off color on repeated attacks, but they failed to worry the veteran "Daddy" Bubar even when the Wolverines were short handed.

WILD SHOOTING

Their shots were wild, and the second line of Jimmy Hagarty, Arnold Deacon and Gus Saxberg experienced the same trouble. What the invaders had in abundance was speed. Time and again they went through the Halifax defence without being checked, only to miss the net or be stopped by Bubar.

Jackie Nash, the nineteen-year-old goalie just from the junior ranks, was a hero. After Hudson's drive got by he settled down and saved the westerners from a rout. Once in the third period when Bearcats were weakened by a penalty, the slim netminder handled three scorchers in a matter of seconds, catching one as he lay on his back between the posts.

Teams follow:

Halifax.—Bubar, Graham, Lavigne, McGlashe, Hudson, Lennon, Ferguson, Porteous, Shields, Lawlor.

Expect Thrilling English Cup Final

Sheffield Wednesday and West Bromwich Albion Who Battle in Soccer Classic at Wembley on April 27 Both Have Plenty of Dash and Vigor

Special to The Times

London, April 16. — Although fate has decreed that there shall not be a north and south struggle or a "battle of the roses" at Wembley for the Football Association Challenge Cup, on April 27, the clashing of Sheffield Wednesday and West Bromwich Albion, representing two cities practically only a stone's throw apart from each other, should provide an abundance of thrills.

The Wednesday, who are in their jubilee year as cup fighters, may be relied upon to do their utmost to win the cup for the fourth time, and incidentally celebrate the Royal Jubilee as well.

The styles of the two teams are similar, both being endowed with plenty of dash and vigor. The lucky 93,000 or so people who have obtained tickets for the match, will be treated to a real rousing struggle, with the traditional spirit of rivalry urging the players on to superhuman efforts.

Science is likely to be at a discount. Typical cup-tie soccer will be the order of the day; cut out the frills, "kill" the ball, get it away and run as hard as possible. Not pretty to watch, perhaps, but it makes for thrills in the respective goal-mouths and thrills, of course, go hand in hand with cup finals.

It is an unavoidable pity that only 93,000 of the vast soccer populace will be able to witness these twenty-two men fighting for the honor of "lifting the mug." For ninety minutes they play as if their lives depend upon their efforts—and their individual reward is only a small gold or silver medal!

FOR THE UNLUCKY ONES

However, compulsory absence owing to the scarcity of tickets does not come so much a hardship in these days of scientific progress. The unlucky ones can stay at home, listen to a running commentary of the game, gather in all the atmosphere and visualize themselves among the swaying masses, so easy is it to follow mentally the progress of play. Then, in many big towns, particularly in London, the stay-at-home, armed with the "mind" picture of events, can go to a cinema to see a picture of the match the same evening.

WEDNESDAY'S DEFENSIVE PULL

Sheffield Wednesday, a side of immense solidity, of tremendous physical strength and of untold stamina, will probably go off with a rush as they have done in most of their matches. The vigor and determination of these first onslaughts may have the effect of sweeping the Albion off their feet, as many other teams have done at the start.

In their previous cup matches, particularly against Bolton, West Bromwich have seemed "nervy," and it has taken some time for them to settle down. It is difficult to understand the reason for this failing of the Albion, who have ten of their cup-winning team of 1930-31 in the side. It is their ability to recover that has got them so far.

Sheffield Wednesday appear to have the pull in defence, and they will need to against the nippy Albion forwards who play open, harassing football, with Carter, the captain, the inspiration.

W. G. Richardson, in the centre, is a fine thrustful leader, lacking finesse perhaps, but very effective. He has many good scoring feats to his credit, including the scoring of four goals in as many minutes against West Ham on one occasion.

He will, however, find Millership, Wednesday's centre-half, as solid as a rock. As hard as nails, Millership is one of the finest "stopper" half-backs in the country, and his fine work was recognised by the F.A., who selected him to play for the Rest against England in the trial match. Millership is the dominating figure of a sound halfback line, and has with his cool, sound tackling and blotted out most centre-forwards clean head-work.

Millership has an excellent colleague on the left in Burrows. Unlike the rest of the line, Burrows does not remain purely on the defensive. He is not afraid to take the ball through to his forwards, and his initiative has had much to do with the success of the Starling-Rimmer combination, who are probably the best left wing playing in the country to-day.

Starling, the captain of the side, is the genius of the line. He plays the part of rover with good effect, and interchanges well with Rimmer. The latter is a great opportunist, always ready to cut in and shoot for goal. His scoring powers may be judged by the fact that he has netted nearly a hundred league goals for the Wednesday since he joined in 1927. Rimmer has scored in every cup-tie this season.

On the extreme right "Midget" Mark Hooper, who takes only size "four" in boots, is just as great a force. Nippy and resourceful, he has scored 101 league goals for Sheffield Wednesday, whom he joined in 1926. The work of the wingers has been largely responsible for the Wednesday's run of success.

Palethorpe, in the centre, cannot be called an ideal leader, but he is a 100 per cent tried and a great opportunist. What he lacks in skill he certainly makes up in enthusiasm.

The Wednesday goal is in the safe charge of Brown, who has gained international honors at the game. In front of him are a very capable pair of backs in Nibloe and Catlin, both fearless tacklers and hard kickers.

Catlin, when a boy, was taken by his father to watch Ernest Blenkinsop play. "Model yourself on him, son," said Dad. . . . . Catlin did so. And to-day he is filling the very posi-

GRADS TAKE SECOND GAME

Defeat Province Girls 64 to 42 to Capture Western Canada Cage Honors

Edmonton, April 16.—Irresistable, the Edmonton Commercial Grads blazed through the Vancouver Province cagers for their thirteenth consecutive western Canada senior girls' basketball championship yesterday evening with a 64 to 42 victory here. The Grads had beaten the Coast champions in the first game of the series 63 to 24 Saturday.

The Edmonton champions were to leave to-day for Windsor, Ont., to meet the Windsor-Walkerville alumnae for the Canadian senior girls' basketball championship. The series will open next Saturday.

Showing more staying power over the long route and lasting much better than in the opening game, the Coast cagers were a vastly improved team yesterday evening, and so gave the Grads a closer argument. They fought hard all the way, and although outscored in every quarter, made a brilliant finish to count sixteen points in the final quarter, just two points less than their opponents

HIGH SCORING

Once again the centre star of the Grads, Noel MacDonald, led her mates' scoring drive when she counted nineteen points. Doris Neale was next with thirteen, while Margaret MacBurney and Babe Belanger counted twelve and eleven points respectively.

Mary Code was the spark plug of the Province team, amassing a total of thirteen points. Betty Passerini was next with nine.

Teams and scores:

Vancouver Province—B. Passerini 9, M. Code 13, K. Annan, E. Downie 2, D. Railton 6, S. Gilmore 4, F. Iden 4, N. Smethurst 4. Total 42.

Edmonton Grads—M. MacBurney 12, B. Belanger 11, N. MacDonald 19, D. Neale 13, G. Fry 5, M. Munton, E. Dann 3, H. Northrup 1. Total 64.

ERNIE STOCK IS PRESIDENT

Victorian Elected Head of British Columbia Softball Association

Vancouver, April 16. — Ernie Stock, Victoria, was elected president of the British Columbia Softball Association at the annual meeting here Saturday. He succeeds J. B. Powell, New Westminster, who is now on the executive board.

Other officers elected were: William Pike, first vice-president; J. A. Knight, Ladysmith, representing Nanaimo, second vice-president; Arthur Smith, New Westminster, third vice-president. H. R. (Bert) Davidson was re-elected secretary-treasurer for his seventh term.

Honorary presidents are: John Watson; Mayor David Leeming, Victoria; Mayor G. G. McGeer, Vancouver; and Col. Villiers, Nanaimo.

RULE CHANGES

Various amendments were made to game rules, chiefly to clarify their meanings, as follows:

1. A block ball, after being returned to the pitcher, is dead.

2. A batter is out on the third strike whether the catcher catches the ball or not.

3. Anyone can coach, the word "player" being taken from rule 71, section 7.

Players must now be permanent residents from February 1 in place of May 1 of the current year, this ruling to be effective in 1936.

Juniors and intermediates are allowed to play only three games with seniors before signing senior cards.

The captain or manager of a team can now decide whether grounds are in a fit condition for play.

The meeting also discussed a letter from the secretary of the Ontario Softball Association, dealing with the forming of a Canadian association, but this matter was dropped owing to transportation costs and to fear of losing amateur cards.

Carpet Bowlers Gather Thursday

The annual meeting of the Crystal Garden Carpet Bowling Club will be held in the club room at the Gardens on Thursday next at 8 o'clock for the election of officers and distribution of prizes to be followed by a social and refreshments. All members are asked to be present.

Detroit Olympics Win In Overtime

Wally Kilrea Scores Soft Counter to Give International League Champions 4 to 3 Victory Over Vancouver Lions in Deciding Game of Little World Hockey Series

Vancouver, April 16.—Detroit Olympics prepared to leave for their eastern homes to-day, with the unofficial title of minor hockey league champions, and leaving behind them a crew of disgruntled Vancouver Lions. And the most disgruntled of all was Johnny Clark, the black-thatched net custodian of Guy Patrick's Northwest League champions. Yesterday evening the Olympics took a 4 to 3 overtime decision from the Lions in the fifth and deciding game of their "little world series," and Johnny, so he says, helped the victors.

Tied at the start of the third period, when Detroit, in a second session scoring spurge, matched Vancouver's opening period tally of three markers, the teams battled through to overtime, prepared to play all night, if necessary, to decide the series winners.

SOFT COUNTER

With less than six minutes of the extra session gone, Wally Kilrea carried the puck down the right boards and was crowded into a corner near the Vancouver net. The Detroit winger got away a shot that slithered up to the goalmouth and, as Clark stuck out his stick, struck it and glanced into the net for one of those goals that goalkepers like to forget.

In the final two minutes Manager Guy Patrick yanked Clark and put on six forwards, but the strategy proved futile.

Clint Smith opened the scoring for Vancouver in the first period, picking up Bobby Kirk's pass near the Detroit goal to count. Tip O'Neill slid the disc to Gordon McFarlane for the Lions' second goal four minutes later, and Clint soloed through for an unassisted marker before the period ended.

Olympic turned the tables in the middle session to count three goals in less than four minutes. Conny King notched the first on a double assist from Tommy Anderson and Des Roche. Tip Foster took Ron Moffat's llama tied the count on another double pass from Roche and Orville Roulston.

Teams follow:

Bicycle Races Are Postponed

Owing to the unsafe condition of the recently sanded Beacon Hill track, the regular Moody Cup race and other bike fixtures scheduled there for Good Friday have been postponed, it was announced late yesterday by George Robinson, secretary of the Victoria Cycling Club. The contests will probably be staged on May 24 if suitable arrangements can be made.

Doug Peden Leads Scoring Parade In 53 To 23 Decision

Ribbons bungling plenty of scoring opportunities. The local players seemed unable to get accustomed to the strange floor and a large number of their passes went astray.

At the four-minute mark the Ribbons went into the lead. Peden taking a fast pass from Chuck Chapman to register from close in. On a fast play from the tip-off Phillips found the circle from the side to even matters. With six and a half minutes gone the Ribbons again took the lead when Peden dribbled the length of the floor in a twisting, fast-breaking rush to score from directly underneath. Andrews followed with another individual rush that was good for two points from in front. The Toilers called time out. Peden raced in under the Toilers' basket to take a pass from Chuck Chapman and convert a set-up. The Toilers substituted Woolley for Hampton. Woolley fouled Art Chapman and the centre made one of the two throws to give the Ribbons a 9 to 2 lead.

Tearing into the corner, Art Chapman lofted through the first of his one-handed attempts. Woolley sneaked through a nice shot from yards out for the Toilers' second basket. Art Chapman got two more free shots when fouled by Phillips and made one. Dodds fouled Art Chapman as he tried to get through and the line throw was good. The same player took a perfect pass from Martin and two more points went up on the board.

The Toilers passed the ball around nicely and Driver got within shooting range for a field basket. Taking Art Chapman's rebound Peden lifted the ball in over his head. Andrews followed with a basket and Art Chapman made it 21 to 6 with another of his one-handers. The Toilers took their second time out with three and a half minutes to go. On resuming the Ribbons kept up their dynamic offensive and Martin slipped in a rebound. Woolley fouled Andrews and it cost the Toilers a point. Martin worked in to pick off another rebound and convert. Chuck Chapman hacked Woolley and he scored the free attempt. Peden dropped the ball through over his shoulder to end the first half with the Ribbons leading 28 to 7.

SECOND HALF

With the start of the final period the Toilers got two quick baskets through Wallace and Woolley and for a few minutes it looked like they would get back into the running. Art Chapman took a fast pass from brother Chuck and it meant a basket. At the other end Woolley whistled the ball clean through from well out. On a beautiful tip-off play Art Chapman tapped the ball to Martin, who whipped it to Andrews and the latter slipped the leather through the hoop. Driver got loose in front and made no mistake to make the score 32 to 15. Art Chapman added two points with a shot from the side. Woolley fouled Andrews and left the floor for the evening. He was replaced by Hampton.

Dodds blocked Andrews and Porky made his two shots good for as many points. Art Chapman went into the corner and again brought the house down with a one-hand floater that slipped through the mesh. Martin made a rebound good and the count was 40 to 17. Driver made it 40 to 19. Martin sank a technical foul called against the visitors. Phillips got a field basket for the Toilers. The Ribbons substituted Wallis and McKeachie for Andrews and Martin, with nine minutes to go.

Sinking a long floater from the side Phillips boosted the Toilers' total to twenty-three. Wallis nipped in to pick off a rebound and get his first points of the series. Peden camped underneath the twine and scored easily when Art Chapman gave him a pass. Toilers took their third time out. On a jump near the basket Art Chapman slapped the ball through the hoop. Three fast baskets by Peden ended the scoring for the evening.

GREAT PERFORMANCE

Peden's exhibition of shooting passing and defensive play was the best he has given this season. Torchy's young brother appeared to be just in his element all evening and was the outstanding player on the floor.

Ralph Thomas, Vancouver, and G. Shadd, Winnipeg, made a first-class job of refereeing.

In the preliminary game Lake Hill defeated Hoyle-Brown 42 to 28. F. Harding was the referee.

Just before the opening of the game the fans and players observed half a minute's silence in memory of the two members of the Toilers' team who were killed in the disastrous airplane crash two years ago.

Toronto, April 16.—A new three-game period of 1,550 by A. (Sandy) Tunstal, Toronto, marked the ninth annual Canadian Bowling Association tournament which concluded here Saturday night. Tunstal's mark was the highest in the history of the C.B.A. five-pin tournament.

Toronto teams dominated the five-man team event, only three outside hands getting into the first ten. But one of the three, Oshawa Majors, topped them all with a mark of 3,856. Saturday night. Toronto Lakeside number one team was second with 3,776.

BARNEY ROSS QUITS RANKS

Lightweight Boxing Champ Gives Up His Title Through Weight Difficulty

New York, April 16.—Barney Ross, the little fellow who has ruled the lightweights for the last two years, decided he was too big for them yesterday, and so he turned in his resignation as champion of the 135-pounders to the New York State Athletic Commission.

This sudden move, first of its kind in lightweight title history that goes all the way back to 1909, when Abe Hicken beat Pete McGuire in Perryville, Mo., brought several swift developments.

First it relieved the dapper little Chicago walloper of the necessity of fighting Lou Ambers, a tough, rubber ball sort of warrior who has been pestering him for a chance at the lightweight crown for months, and who is designated as the number one title challenger here.

WILL MEET McLARNIN

It paved the way for another really "big money" battle between Ross and Jimmy McLarnin, the welterweight king, whom Barney outpointed last May to become a double champion, and then bowed to in a return engagement in September. Mike Jacobs, promoter of the newly formed Twentieth Century Sporting Club, has their rubber duel all arranged and was to ask the boxing commission to-day for permission to stage it May 28 in the Polo Grounds.

Ross, who won the lightweight championship from Tony Canzoneri in Chicago, June 23, 1933, and defended it only once, against Tony here the same fall, weighed only 136½ pounds for his match last Tuesday with Henry Woods in Seattle. His managers said, however, he was weak even at that weight, and so they decided he must never try to make 136 pounds again.

WINDSOR IN SERIES LEAD

Assumption College Defeat Notre Dame de Grace in Eastern Hoop Final

Windsor, Ont., April 16.—Assumption College purples broke away on the right foot in their challenge for the eastern Canada senior basketball title when they outscored the strong Notre Dame de Grace quintette of Montreal, 46 to 38 in the first of a two-out-of-three game series here yesterday evening. The second game is scheduled for to-night, and a third, if necessary to-morrow.

Notre Dame, weakened by the absence of their star forward, Len Hutton, battled the Purples right from the opening whistle, and were always within hailing distance of their formidable rivals. The score at half time was 22 to 15 for Assumption.

Big guns in the Ontario champions' victory were "Moose" Rogin, rugged centre, and captain "Scrubby" Aitchison, whose deadly shooting of field goals earned him the plaudits of the 2,000 or more present.

Standing out for the Montrealers and sparkling, despite the defeat, were Buster "Red" Allan and Lou Newton, of football fame, regular forwards of the visitors.

LOUIS CLIMBS ANOTHER RUNG

Jack Purcell To Battle U.S. Pro

Toronto, April 16.—Jack Purcell, Toronto, world professional badminton champion and former Canadian amatuer titleholder, announced yesterday evening arrangements had been completed for a title match next month in Los Angeles against George F. (Jess) Willard. The date was set as May 9.

Purcell won the pro title two years ago by defeating J. F. Devlin, former all-England singles champion, now of Winnipeg. He has successfully defended it several times, twice defeating Willard, generally recognized as the best professional in the United States.

MINOR BALL LOOP OPENS

Clubs in International League Swing Into Action To-morrow

New York, April 16.—With three new managers and a generous sprinkling of rookies on each club, the International Baseball League will open its fifty-second season to-morrow with the prospects of another hard-fought battle for the four play-off positions.

There will be no little world series this year, the International League and American Association having broken off relations in that regard, but the four ranking teams again will meet in the playoff series with the players sharing in a special fund set aside during the regular season.

The opening games will find Newark Bears, winner of the regular season race for the last three years, at home to Rochester Red Wings; Toronto Maple Leafs, victors in the playoffs, at Syracuse; Montreal Royals at Baltimore and Buffalo Bisons at Albany.

NEW MANAGERS

Rochester, Syracuse and Albany will start the season with new leaders. Eddie Dyer, a member of St. Louis Cardinals' farm system for seven years, will be at the helm of the Red Wings while Al Mamaux, erstwhile manager of the Bears, will guide the Senators and Harry Leibold, former major leguer, will direct the destinies of the Chiefs.

In seeking its fourth straight triumph, Bob Shawkey's Newark Club will present a team of newcomers. Ray Schalk, infielder, is the only regular back from last year with the exception of three or four pitchers.

The Maple Leafs, while looking to Cincinnati Reds for reinforcements, will swing into action with practically no reserve strength. Manager Ike Boone, the league's ranking slugger last year, is certain only of his outfield, composed of himself, Wes Schulmerich and Tom Oliver.

MAY MERGE ICE LOOPS

New York, April 16.—Foundation for a new hockey league to arise in the place of the International and the Canadian-American circuits was constructed here yesterday at a conference between officials and governors of the two minor loops of eastern Canada and the United States.

While no definite decision was arrived at during the lengthy and exploratory talks, the delegates left the meeting with the majority sentiment indicating the project was favored.

Before any final conclusion is reached the officials and governors of each league will meet in separate conclave shortly, with each circuit appointing two or three representatives to meet in Montreal around May 10, either to conclude the merger or abandon it.

Major tournaments were designated as the B.C. clay courts championship, the Western Canada grass championships and the B.C. grass tourney.

FRED PERRY GOING HOME

Famous British Tennis Star Returning For Summer Tournaments

Hollywood, April 16.—Fred Perry, world tennis champion, has not turned professional "despite many rumors to the contrary," an acquaintance said here yesterday evening shortly after the net star left for New York en route to England, where he will compete in tennis tournaments.

He departed after being informed his British actress-fiancee, Mary Lawson, said in London yesterday she had broken their engagement because he intended to follow a movie career and live in Hollywood.

Before leaving, Perry talked with Perry T. Jones, secretary of the California Tennis Association, and told him he had not thought of jeopardizing his standing as an amateur player. Jones said Perry told him he had turned down proposals made by film companies.

Associated Press

London, April 16.—Mary Lawson, British actress, announced yesterday she had broken off her engagement to Fred Perry, John Bull's leading amateur tennis player, because Perry wishes to live in the United States.

"My work and my interests are in England and I intend to remain here," she said. "We had a telephone talk Sunday night and reached the decision to end the engagement."

Mrs. C. E. Wilson Is Golf Winner

In the women's spring cup competition staged at the Colwood Golf Club yesterday Mrs. C. E. Wilson was the winner, with a gross score of 98, which her handicap reduced to a net 81. Mrs. R. L. Pocock and Mrs. G. T. Quincey finished in a tie for second place, each with net scores of 82.

ED LEWIS IN WILD DISPLAY

Heavyweight Wrestler Goes Beserk During Match at Montreal

Montreal, April 16.—After a wild free-for-all in which seconds, preliminary wrestlers and officials participated, Ed "Strangler" Lewis yesterday evening was disqualified in a hectic tussle with Ed Don George, who was declared victor.

Lewis had taken the first fall in 20.40 minutes, and George evened the count at 11.05. Immediately after George won his fall, the fireworks started. Lewis slammed George to the canvas after the bell had rung. Referee Jimmie McKinnie received a smash in the groin.

Charley Strack, one of the preliminary wrestlers, jumped into the ring and was immediately tossed out by Lewis. George's second was then knocked out, and before Lewis could be quieted a general free-for-all broke out, with Alderman Rochon, a member of the athletic commission, being struck.

England-Scotland Soccer Game Set

London, April 16.—An international soccer match between England and Scotland, to be played on Arsenal's ground at Highbury May 8, has been arranged in connection with the celebration of the King's Silver Jubilee.

England's representatives will oppose a team composed of Scots playing with English clubs. A fully representative Scottish eleven could not be selected, as many Scottish internationals are included in the side that leaves for a tour of Canada and the United States on May 8.

In the Highbury match all players will give their services free and will be presented with silver souvenirs.

Princeton, N.J., April 16.—The greatest quartette of milers in track history, Jack Lovelock, Oxford; Bill Bonthron, Princeton Alumnus; Glenn Cunningham, the great Kansas, and Gene Venzke, Pennsylvania, will resume their various rivalries in one "super" mile at the Princeton Invitational track meet here June 15, it was announced yesterday evening.

Europe No Threat Says Les Patrick

No Danger of Leading Hockey Players Crossing the Pond, Declares Manager of New York Rangers; Canada Can Always Produce Plenty of Material

New York, April 16.—Re-echoing W. A. Hewitt's new historical statement of a decade ago that "Canada can always produce sufficient hockeymen to supply not only her own needs but the needs of the entire world," Lester Patrick, manager of New York Rangers, calmed fears expressed by minor league officials Britain and Europe would soon monopolize the Dominion's production.

Almost ten years ago Canadian Amateur Hockey Association officials were worried at the increasing migration of youthful talent to United States. At a meeting in Toronto, Hewitt, registrar of the organization, minimized the danger with his remarks Canada's supply would always exceed the demand.

Herbert Gardiner, manager of the Philadelphia Arrows of the Canadian-American League, voiced fears of the minor loops at a week-end conference here between the International and Canadian-American circuits called to discuss a proposed merger of the two. Patrick, leading orator of the major leagues, took the floor and discounted the pessimism of Gardiner and others.

LOTS OF PLAYERS

He revealed he had been asked to furnish European magnates with 100 players at the start of the last season and could have accomplished the task easily but for his numerous duties at Madison Square Garden concerning the Rangers.

"Possibility of Britain or Europe competing with the National League in the signing of a first class big time prospects are negligible at present, anyway," Patrick proceeded.

"Granted that hockey is catching on abroad one must consider their overhead is terrific traveling from capital to capital. I think you will find for the next few years, if professional hockey is introduced over there it will be of a minor brand, perhaps not anywhere near the equal shown in our weakest minor leagues. And players of that type abound by the thousands in Canada."

Major Hockey To Enter Cleveland

New York, April 16.—Either Montreal Canadiens or St. Louis Eagles will provide Cleveland hockey fans with major league pucksharing next season, according to Larry Sutphin, now operating Cleveland Falcons in the International League.

Here attending the minor loops' conference yesterday, Sutphin said he had "put $50,000 on the line" for a National League franchise and fully expected to operate it next season.

Expect Thrilling English Cup Final

tion that used to belong to Blenkinsop in the very team that Blenkinsop played for.

West Bromwich are faced with a stern task. The attack is a lively go-ahead line, but it lacks the touch of class—the ability to bring off the unexpected that Starling and Surtees lead to The Wednesday. However, they are capable of pulling out clever, methodical football at times, and added to the tenacious spirit they have shown, they must be regarded as dangerous foes.

SURVIVAL OF FITTEST

West Bromwich, who won promotion and the cup five seasons ago, say it is their cup year again. Their strong forte is stamina, there being no doubt about their being able to stay the distance. Albion have nothing over Wednesday in defence, great players though Pearson, Shaw, Trentham, Murphy and W. Richardson undoubtedly are.

Everything points to a hard-fought, thrilling affair, with no quarter asked or given. It will probably prove to be the case of the survival of the fittest—with Sheffield Wednesday emerging triumphant.

As the normal colors of both teams are identical—blue and white stripes—an "all change" was necessary for the final, according to F.A. rules.

After some wrangling the clubs settled the color problem between themselves, without having to go to the F.A. to decide the question. West Bromwich decided upon blue shirts and white shorts, and Wednesday chose white shirts and dark knickers.

West Bromwich are a sort of local family team—and a happy family at that. The outlay for their side has not been great, many of their players having been born in the neighborhood of the ground. Several of them are actual descendants of old Albion stalwarts.

Goalkeeper Pearson, born at Tadworth, is a son of Hubert Pearson, who also guarded the Albion citadel. Trantham is Shropshire born, but played most of his early soccer in the Midlands. Edwards, left half, is a younger brother of a former member of the team and comes from nearby Tipton. Billy Richardson, the centre half, is a brother of Sam Richardson, another player whom the older Albion supporters will remember.

Carter, born at Aston, has been with no other league club, and is the long-service man, with twelve years stretching behind him. Carter, an inside-left, covers the ground at a good pace with his raking stride. A cool player and clever captain.

Ted Sandford is a nephew of Abe Jones, who played in the Albion colors of the long ago. Sandford was actually born within sight of the Hawthorns and has, so to speak, never moved far from his own doorstep. Speedy and a great opportunist, he is a dangerous forward. He was chosen to play in the English trial match.

Boyes is a grafting, worrying wing man, who works himself into position for a shot, and is always in the thick of the fray. Gale, the scheming schoolmaster, uses his brains for other things than teaching the three "r's."

Shore-Boucher Given Awards

Hart and Lady Byng to Members of Boston and Rangers Hockey Teams

Montreal, April 16. — Eddie Shore, main dynamo in the Boston Bruins powerhouse, yesterday was announced as winner of the Dr. David A. Hart Trophy as the most useful player to his team in the National Hockey League season which has just closed.

For the seventh time in his career and for the third time in a row, Frank Boucher, star centre player of New York Rangers, has been awarded the Lady Byng Trophy, given the player who best embodies the highest type of sportsmanship combined with superior playing ability.

Both awards were made by vote of sports writers in each city of the National Hockey League circuit.

FOR SECOND TIME

Shore was voted the Hart Trophy for the second time in his career. He had previously won it in 1932-33. This season he was given considerable opposition in the voting by Charlie Conacher, Toronto's big right winger and the league's leading scorer, who was a close second, and Art Coulter, Chicago defenceman.

Choice of Shore as winner of the trophy presented by the late Dr. David A. Hart of Montreal, climaxes the big defenceman's return to forceful and brilliant hockey this season after a poor year in 1933-34 when the "Ace" Bailey incident threatened for a time to end his usefulness.

Profit-takers Fail To Curb Uptrend On Wall Street Market

Associated Press

New York, April 16.—Stock market speculation, with scattered chemicals, oils and industrials, pushed up in to-day's session after early profit-taking had been absorbed. Selectivity ruled throughout the rather quiet proceedings.

The close was fairly firm. Transfers approximated 730,000 shares.

Passage by the United States senate of co-ordinator Eastman's proposals for the regulation of buses and trucks pleased the followers of carrier stocks, but the transportation group failed to exhibit exceptional enthusiasm.

Allied Chemical, shares spurted some five points, U.S. Smelting advanced about two at its best, and others, up fractions to a point or more, included Standard Oils of New Jersey and California, Socony, Continental Oil, Lehman Corp., Cerro de Pasco, American Smelting, Air Reduction, International Business Machines, Du Pont, Liggett & Myers B and American Tobacco B.

Dome reacted a point among shares of Canadian companies, while McIntyre and International Nickel were off slightly. Canadian Pacific ruled about even. On the curb, Lake Shore was steady. Canadian Government 4s advanced ⅝ of a point. Canadian funds were 1-16 of a cent higher at 99⅝ cents.

SMALL SWINGS AT TORONTO

Canadian Press

Toronto, April 16.—Narrow price swings marked the performance of the Toronto mining share market to-day. The drop in the price of bar silver unsettled the market for the white metal share, and the base metals reacted sympathetically.

Base Metals Corporation weakened about seven points, while Pend Oreille had the support of a rumor that the plant would be reopened immediately and the price climbed 12 to 15 cents. Noranda held around $36.25, off about half a dollar.

Among the silver leaders Eldorado reduced an early loss of 15 cents, and recessions were also halved for Bear Exploration, Nipissing, and the penny issues.

Bralorne was active and a little higher. Dome worked lower in slow trading.

Pickle Crow, God's Lake, Morris Kirkland and Teshota traded lower.

San Antonio, Little Long Lac, Buffalo-Ankerite and Rena recorded recessions of 2 to 5 cents. Chemical Research dropped nearly 10 cents, and the cheap oils were about steady.

Return Of Tarzan

He had never intended that Tarzan should leave her city, for she had looked upon his giant frame and handsome face with the eyes of a woman and not those of a priestess. She felt quite sure he would be satisfied to remain and be her husband rather than to return to the sacrificial altar. And now he had come back—materialized from thin air.

And he was hitting her priests as though they had been sheep. For the moment she forgot her victim, and before she could gather her wits together again, the huge white man was standing before her, the woman who had lain upon the altar in his arms. "One side, La," he cried, "you saved me once, so I would not harm you; but do not interfere, or I shall kill you also!"

As he spoke he stepped past her toward the entrance to the subterranean vaults. "Who is she?" asked the high priestess, pointing to the unconscious woman. "She is mine," said Tarzan of the Apes. For a moment the girl of Opar stood wide-eyed and staring. Then a look of hopeless misery suffused her eyes—tears welled into them, and she gave a little cry.

As the mask to the cold floor, a swarm of frightful men dashed past her to leap upon the ape-man. But Tarzan of the Apes was not there when they reached out to seize him. With a light bound he had disappeared into the passage leading to the pits below. The men of Opar laughed and jabbered together, for they thought there was no exit from the pits.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

DEAR MISS DIX—On account of the depression many young people have been compelled to defer marrying. What are the advantages and disadvantages of a late marriage?

WALTER.

Answer—The disadvantages of a marriage that has to be long deferred is that inevitably a lot of romance wears off. Love's young dream gets a little shopworn in time and loses some of its glitter. Wedding cake is like a souffle. To get its finest flavor it should be eaten as soon as it is cooked, when it is all puffed up and hot. If you let it stand it falls flat.

Only when we are very young do we ever see the golden glory and are we upborne by the circling wings of love. Only when we are young do we thrill and palpitate and grow hot and cold at the sound of a footstep. Only when we are very young is some young woman a goddess and some man a hero to us. Only when we are very young do we believe that a marriage license is a "glory ticket," as our colored friends say. And so, in a way, it is a pity that boys and girls cannot marry while all of this glamour is about them. Inevitably, of course, they are bound to have their disillusion because real life is never a fairy tale, but they have had, at any rate, their great moment.

But having gotten what they wanted when they wanted it, is about all that can be said in favor of the early marriage. That it does not make for happiness is abundantly proved by the fact that it ends far oftener in divorce than does the marriage contracted later in life. Nothing is more baseless than the theory that if a boy and girl marry they will grow up together and have the same tastes and habits and outlooks on life.

Development is determined by Nature, not by propinquity. The kind of men and women we grow into depends upon our heredity, our education, our brains, the way we were trained in babyhood, and it is just a chance when a boy and girl start out with the same mental and moral equipment, the same background and develop along the same lines. Indeed, how seldom this occurs we see in the misfit husbands and wives all about us who, after their flare of romance is over, have not a single thought or taste or interest in common.

Nor is there any truth in the other sentimental theory that young people can adapt themselves to each other better than older people. Nothing in the world is so unadaptable as youth, because youth is pure selfishness and arrogance. It takes time. It takes age. It takes experience. It takes butting up against the world to teach us the folly of trying to break down stone walls instead of walking around them. It takes a knowledge of life that comes only from living to teach us how to get along with people—and that goes for husbands and wives especially—how to make allowances for their faults and to make the most of their virtues, and how generally to smooth their fur the right way and handle them with tact and diplomacy.

So the young people who have had to defer their marriages need not feel that their waiting has been a total loss. They may not have quite so many illusions, but they will have a lot better chance at happiness. In the first place, they will be sure of their own feelings, and after all that is the most important thing in making marriage a success. Really getting your heart's desire. They can be sure that any affection that has withstood the wear and tear of a long engagement is the genuine, blown-in-the-bottle kind that only death itself can shatter.

Then they will know they are getting what they want in a life companion, instead of gambling on it as the young do. The men and women they marry will be mature. Their habits and tastes formed. They will be intelligent or dumb. Dependable or flighty. Domestic or play girls and boys. Extravagant or thrifty. Interesting or boring. Marriage will be a sure thing, not a grab-bag proposition.

Furthermore, those who wait to marry until they are financially able to marry certainly stand a great deal better chance of making a success of marriage than those who marry on a shoestring, or no string at all. For starving together doesn't seem as romantic an adventure after marriage as it does before. Love is mighty apt to fly out of the window when the bill-collector is forever hammering on the door, and bread and cheese and kisses pall on the appetites of those accustomed to three square meals a day.

All of which adds up to saying that marriage, like all other good things, is worth waiting for and working for.

DOROTHY DIX.

* * * *

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a widower of thirty-six. I have a little boy of eight and have been advised by well-meaning friends that I should remarry for the sake of the boy, as he is at an age when he especially needs a mother. I am hopelessly and helplessly in love with a girl of twenty-two. Do you think that the difference in our ages is too great for her happiness? I love her so unselfishly that I put her good before my own. There is a woman of my own age who I feel sure would marry me if I asked her, but the only reason I could see for marrying her would be that she would make a good mother for my boy.

S.O.S.

Answer—Whether fourteen years is too great a difference between the ages of a husband and wife depends altogether upon the temperament of the man and woman. If you are young for your age; if you enjoy going about and doing things, and if the girl is old for her age; if she is sedate and serious-minded, then the matter of years is not to be considered.

But if you are old and settled in all of your habits; if you want to spend all of your evenings slumped down in a chair listening to a radio, and if the girl is gay and high-spirited and pleasure-loving, then the difference between your ages is entirely too great. You should marry somebody who is as elderly as you are and she should marry a playboy.

There is nothing more important that that people should marry in their own age class, but this does not mean that they should marry those who have had the same number of birthdays they have. It means people who are spiritually their age. Mentally their age. There are men and women who are old in the cradle and others who are boys and girls at eighty.

Of course, in marrying, a widower should primarily consider his child's advantage, but because a woman is thirty-six does not necessarily insure her being a better stepmother than the one of twenty-two. Not every middle-aged woman has the maternal instinct and an understanding and sympathy with children, any more than she has naturally wavy hair or blue eyes. There again you have to judge the woman on her own merits.

Is this girl fond of children? I don't mean does she make a play at yours with one eye on Papa, but do kids just flock around her wherever she goes? Does the child take to her, because children, like dogs, have a sure instinct about those who really love them. Is she domestic? Will she be willing to stay at home and make a home for him instead of always gadding about? Watch how she handles the child and you can get a line on her qualifications for a stepmother.

But, anyway, don't marry the middle-aged woman whom you don't love under any conditions. That will make all three of you miserable.

DOROTHY DIX.

HOROSCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel"

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 17, 1935

Sinister planetary influences are active to-day, according to astrology. Under this sway there may be treachery in human relations. Nations as well as individuals may be affected by the malefic influences.

Under pressure of need there may be a growth of selfishness that reaches persons who otherwise would be generous, the seers point out. Greed will dominate many in public work and great scandals will be exposed with in the year.

Those who read the stars foretell increase in movement toward dictatorships. Austria is to fight for a return to a modified form of monarchy.

The dictatorial spirit will permeate many organizations and affect the officers. Labor organizations as well as great commercial corporations will be seriously affected, it is foretold.

There is a sign read as indicating a strong alignment of bankers and financiers to resist what they believe is injustice in taxation and other conditions. They will gain in political power, it is prophesied.

This is a fortunate day for men and women who are in high positions. The aspects encourage them to proceed smoothly in carrying out important policies. The President of the United States should benefit.

Success is foretold for expositions and fairs. The stars seem to encourage men and women to seek amusement and relaxation. Much travel will mark the summer.

Gambling and speculation again will lure money from all classes and the horse will focus attention on various race courses. Drinking and dancing also will gain in devotees.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of difficulties connected with law and legal papers. Caution should guide all.

Children born on this sign may be venturesome and experimental, and endowed with big possibilities.

John Dryden, lexicographer, was born on this day, 1797. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Murray Peabody Brush, educator, 1872, and Samuel Austin Allibone, bibliographer, 1816.

Ends Another Pacific Trip

W. E. Blackmar, Lumberman, Completed Fourteenth Trip Across North Pacific To-day.

"Japan is taking lost and lean lumber from Washington and Oregon," stated W. E. Blackmar of the Douglas Fir and Exploitation Company of Seattle, who reached Victoria this morning from Kobe aboard the Ss. President Grant.

"Japan seems to be producing enough lumber for her own consumption," Mr. Blackmar said. "Last year she produced 4,000,000,000 feet."

No lumber has gone into Japan this year from Russia, Mr. Blackmar said. "Russia needs all her lumber for herself," he added.

The well-known lumberman completed his fourteenth passage across the North Pacific when the President Grant docked this morning. He has made all these voyages in the last twelve years, traveling approximately 60,000 miles by this route alone.

He said he was not sure when he would return to Japan. If he completes his Seattle business in time he may take the President Grant back across the Pacific when she sails on April 27.

MANY TO JOIN CRUISE LINER

Pacific Coast Residents to Travel By Empress of Britain to England

Nearing the end of her 120-day world cruise of 30,000 miles to thirty-two ports in twenty-four countries, the Canadian Pacific flagship Empress of Britain, Capt. Ronald Stuart, V.C., is due at San Francisco from the Hawaiian Islands, May 2. Remaining in San Francisco a day for a drive by her passengers around the colorful old city, the Britain will leave the next day for San Pedro.

At San Francisco her world cruise list of more than 400 persons will be augmented by a number of passengers from different cities along the Pacific Coast, who will travel in her as first class passengers from San Francisco or Los Angeles to Southampton, where she ends her cruise, taking a few days' rest to be fitted up for her regular summer schedule between Southampton and Quebec.

Among passengers who will be joining her in California for the voyage through the canal to Havana, New York, Southampton and intermediate ports, are Mr. and Mrs. William Griffiths and B. C. Griffiths of London, who are picking the liner up in San Francisco to continue an independent world tour; Mrs. B. Hadow, Miss Audrey Hadow and Mrs. C. T. Marshall of Victoria, and Mr. and Mrs. H. P. M. Bower of Vancouver. Mrs. Hadow, Miss Hadow and Mrs. Marshall plan to spend the summer in the British Isles and on the continent, returning to Quebec on the Empress of Britain September 26.

In connection with the business of the ship, R. H. Kirkpatrick, catering superintendent of the Canadian Pacific Steamships, and Jeffrey Arnott, assistant purchasing agent, both of Vancouver, will shortly travel south to meet the liner on her arrival in San Francisco.

So popular is the Empress of Britain that advertisements regarding the special offer of a trip from California to England in her had to be withdrawn when it was announced all space had been taken up.

HERE FROM MAURITIUS

T. F. Doyle Arrives By President Grant and Tells of Tiny Outpost in Indian Ocean

From the island of Mauritius, a tiny dot in the Indian Ocean, T. F. Doyle, a British government official there, arrived in Victoria this morning from the Orient by the liner President Grant. He is on his way to his home in Ireland to spend the summer after being absent three years.

"The island is really quite a delightful spot in which to live," Mr. Doyle said this morning. "The climate is good and in the summer we go up into the hills where the nights, at least, are cool. If there were a hotel there it would become a resort for the people of South Africa."

The chief industry of Mauritius is the growing of sugar cane, Mr. Doyle said. Last year the production amounted to 260,000 tons.

SUGAR COMES HERE

"Most of the sugar goes to the United Kingdom and to Canada," Mr. Doyle said. "Canada is now about the only place in the British Empire giving a preference to our sugar, so more will come into this country in the future."

In return for the business Canada places with Mauritius, the islanders purchase their motor cars from Canada Mr. Doyle said. The roads on the island are good and many Canadian automobiles are to be seen.

Mauritius was important in the days of the sailing ships, before the construction of the Suez Canal. The vessels used to call there for water. At the time of the French occupation, previous to 1810, the island was used as a base for the Corsairs.

There are about 400,000 people on the island, which is 720 square miles in area. Most of the residents are black, although there is a large French population. Besides sugar cane the natives grow a little tobacco, pineapples and other tropical fruit.

TALKIES POPULAR

"The talkies are about the only things that are booming, however," Mr. Doyle said. "They have become exceedingly popular with the natives."

Mauritius is located 500 miles from Madagascar, which is off the east coast of Africa. When starting his long voyage, Mr. Doyle took a Dutch cargo boat across the Indian Ocean to Batavia and then traveled to Hongkong where he boarded the President Grant. Disembarking here, he will spend a day in Victoria and then cross Canada to sail from either Halifax or New York for Europe. He said he hoped to reach London in time for the Jubilee celebrations.

Reunion, another British possession is located not far from Mauritius. Both are famous in British history. They are just north of the Tropic of Capricorn and far south of the Equator. Just across the Indian Ocean from these two tiny islands is Australia. It is about a six-day voyage.

New Airplane Ship In South

San Diego, April 16.—The high seas air force of the United States was further strengthened to-day as the navy's giant new aircraft carrier, Ranger, rode the waves off North Island.

The first aircraft carrier expressly designed and built for such purpose, the Ranger arrived here yesterday to join the United States fleet. She increased the fleet's carrier-based armada to 271 war planes.

The Ranger will carry seventy-nine planes, as will the other big carriers, the Lexington and Saratoga. The rest will be aboard the old Langley.

SEAMEN MEET IN SEATTLE

Representatives of 35,000 Marine Workers Deal With Coast Tanker Strike

Seattle, April 16.—The matter of temporary organization concluded, representatives of 35,000 marine workers attending the Pacific Coast maritime conference to-day plunged into more critical business which includes the Pacific Coast oil tanker strike with a possible general strike to support it.

The rules committee of the conference, considered highly important because of the tense marine labor situation which boiled over into a general strike last summer, is expected to outline procedure for organization of a permanent federation.

Election of permanent officers will follow. Harry Bridges, militant leader of the San Francisco longshoremen in last summer's strike, evaded answering questions as to his possible candidacy for the presidency of the federation.

Bridges yesterday saw any hope he had of seizing control of the conference postponed for a while at least when his proxies were referred to the rules committee for later decision.

Only a fraction of the 600 expected delegates attended the opening session yesterday, but more unions were expected to be represented at the Labor Temple to-day.

Negotiations toward reaching a settlement of the tanker strike meanwhile appeared to be at a standstill. Tanker movements by the oil companies with non-union crews continued at several Pacific Coast ports.

AORANGI HERE ON THURSDAY

With a large list of passengers, the Canadian Australasian motorship Aorangi is expected to reach the William Head quarantine station Thursday evening at 9 o'clock, James Macfarlane, local Canadian Pacific representative was advised this morning by Capt. J. E. Spring-Brown, master of the ship. The big ship is coming in from Sydney, Auckland, Suva and Honolulu.

Yesterday evening at 8 o'clock the Aorangi was 1,180 miles from Victoria, according to a report picked up at the Gonzales Wireless Station.

Newsy Briefs of Land, Sea, Air

Ottawa, April 16.—Repairs to the south jetty at New Westminster will cost $47,104, an Order-in-Council issued yesterday says. The successful contractors are the Coast Quarries Limited, of Vancouver.

FIRE ON SHIP

San Francisco, April 16.—A fire at sea approximately thirty-five miles southwest of Cape San Lucas was reported by radio yesterday by the steamer Calmar.

The Calmar said she was unable to determine the nature of the blaze. The steamer sailed from San Pedro April 12 for New York.

LONGSHOREMAN HIT

San Pedro, April 16.—Using stones and clubs, thirty-eight Union longshoremen routed ten non-union men who were unloading oranges from a boxcar in the outer harbor for transfer to the Norwegian freighter Granville, police reported.

One of the non-union men, Jimmy Beard, was struck on the arm and slightly injured by an iron pipe, he said. Loading of the Granville was suspended for the day, but new crews were ordered for this morning.

JAPANESE SHIP WRECK

Washington, April 16—The Supreme Court refused yesterday to interfere with a lower court decision that Mitsui and Company Ltd., of Japan, is not liable for damage to the cargo carried by its ship Horaisan Maru, which grounded on the bar at Gray's Harbor, March 4, 1926.

The Yokohama, Japan, Specie Bank and a number of other concerns had cargo aboard the ship. The vessel and cargo became practically a total loss.

MAY RETIRE PLANE

While the ship which twice carried the famous Oklahoma flier around the world lay like a wounded bird in the hangar of the Purdue airport awaiting her landing gear, Post, in a hotel here, tersely said:

"I don't think I'll make another attempt at a transcontinental stratospheric flight with my present equipment, and I'm tired of trying to make landings without a landing gear."

An all-Jewish steamship line has been started in Genoa, Italy.

RESCUED FROM CAPSIZED BOAT

Young Seattle Yachtsmen Cling to Upturned Catboat Until Tanker Comes Along

Seattle, April 16.—After clinging to the keel of a capsized catboat for three hours, Peter Dix and John Rupp, each twenty-one, were rescued from Puget Sound late yesterday by the outbound Associated Oil tanker Frank H. Buck.

It lowered a lifeboat, picked up the boys and stood by their frail craft until a coast guard patrol boat arrived and took them ashore.

Dix is the son of I. F. Dix, vice-president and general manager of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company. Rupp is the son of Otto B. Rupp, prominent Seattle attorney.

At home, the boys said they were on John's catboat, towing Peter's flattie off West Point, with sail hoisted and outboard motor running, when the flattie broke loose and the catboat turned over in a squall while she was being manoeuvred to pick up the tow again.

Benlawers Due On Saturday

To load a parcel of Vancouver Island lumber at this port, the British freighter Benlawers is expected at the Ogden Point piers Saturday morning. She will remain here over the Easter week-end, King Brothers, local shipping agents said this morning.

The Benlawers is to-day in Vancouver, having arrived there from Port Alberni, which was her first port-of-call on her return voyage from Japan.

She will load full with British Columbia products and will sail in a week or ten days for the United Kingdom
